Cuban Charges Branded False, Absurd By U.S.

Adlai Denounces "Sinister" Union Of Fidel, Trujillos

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UPI) — The United States charged Wednesday a "sinister alliance" existed between agents of Cuba's Fidel Castro and the ousted relatives of the late Dominican dictator Rafael Trujillo.

The charge was made in the Security Council by U. S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson after Cuba's Ambassador Mario Garcia-Inchaustegui accused the United States of intervening in the Dominican Republic by sending warships to the Caribbean.

Stevenson denounced the Cuban charges as "false, absurd on its face and an unworthy product of any foreign office."

"The people of the Dominican Republic have been the victims of a reactionary family tyrannt for 31 years," Stevenson said.

"Today we are heralding their liberation just as hundreds of thousands of Dominican citizens yesterday celebrated this great step forwarded democratic life of their country.

Irresponsible Charges

"At this time of all times, the Cuban representative comes forward with irresponsible charges—irresponsible, yes, and false, too.

"I would prefer to think that the Cuban complaint was filed in ignorance of the facts about the escape from bondage of the Dominican Republic. Otherwise, this complaint is a gross abuse of the Security Council for it is false and absurd on its face and an unworthy product of any foreign office."

Stevenson said that at no time did U. S. land, sea or air forces violate territorial waters or sovereignty of the Dominican Republic when they were sent there last weekend during a crisis threatened by the return of two of Trujillo's brothers after his son, Gen. Rafael (Ramfis) Trujillo, fled into exile.

Wasn't An Intervention

"The presence of these units of the U. S. fleet on the high seas in international waters and air space did not constitute an act of intervention nor is it contrary to any international agreement," he said.

But Garcia demanded that the council condemn the United States "as an aggressor and demand the withdrawal of its troops from the Dominican Republic." He also charged the United States with "preparing new invasion forces" to be sent to Cuba.

Palace March By Dominicans Turned Back

CIUDAD TRUJILLO, D.R. (UPI)—Police hurled noise bombs Wednesday to break up a march on the government palace by 500 pro-Castro youths demanding the resignation of President Joaquin Balaguer.

The incident highlighted the start of a political struggle for power as the near hysteria of recent days over the end of 32 years of dictatorship subsided.

The palace marchers were followers of Manuel Tavarez of the leftist 14th of June movement. They dispersed quickly in the face of the stern police attitude. There were no casualties or arrests.

Supporters of Viriato Fiallo of the National Civic Union, meanwhile, launched his campaign for power with the slogan "Viriato, Si; Balaguer, No." Only Juan Bosch of the Dominican Revolutionary Party appeared to be biding his time.

Balageur met for the second time in 24 hours with a subcommittee from the Organization of American States to report on the week's developments. One observer described Balaguer's briefing on the ouster of the Trujillos as "precise . . . and factual . . ."

The aborted march on the palace by 500 youths, members of the pro-Castro 14th of June group, constituted the highlight of the day's exictement.

Some whistling and clapping youths, insistently sounding the "li-ber-tad" (freedom) chant, rode on car fenders around town and there was much horn-blowing. But the demonstration lacked the near hysterical character of recent days.

Youth Dies In Crash

CAMBRIDGE (AP) — A car smashed into a utility pole and rolled off Maryland 331 Wednesday, killing one youth and injuring two others.

Killed was the driver, Edward Dickerson, 19, Cambridge. His brothers, Billy 13, and Bobby, 16, were injured.

Rockefeller Joins Search For His Son

Coastal Mudflats Combed As Hopes For Michael Wane

MERAUKE, New Guinea (UPI) —Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, haggard with worry, and his tearful daughter Mary arrived here Wednesday to join in the search for missing Michael Rockefeller and listen to the story of his disappearance from the man who was with him at the time.

The four-day-old search for Michael was concentrated along the mudflats of the southwestern New Guinea coast where the mangrove swamps present such a frightening scene that grave fears were felt for the 23-year-old archeologist.

The weather for the search was good but the area was so remote that search planes were running short of aviation fuel and there were delays waiting for more to be flown in from more civilized areas of New Guinea.

Air Force Standing By

Both the Australian and the Indonesian air forces were reported standing by to join the search despite the differences between The Netherlands and Indonesia and their claims to ownership of the western half of the 1,500-mile-long island.

The Dutch navy withdrew some of its patrols because naval patrol ships cannot get near the freakish coast where mudflats stretch for miles into the sea. But the coast was alive with native canoes probing into the irregular coastline.

Behind the mudflats of the "beaches"—swept by 12 foot tides — were inpenetrable mangrove swamps filled with crocodiles and some of the most poisonous snakes in the world. Behind that, 10 miles or so, were fierce and hostile natives who have been headhunters since the Stone Age.

Two Things Gave Hope

Search operations were being directed by H. J. Eilbrink Jansen, south New Guinea district governor. Some believed young Rockefeller might have been swept westward by strong coastal currents from the Eilanden River where he vanished.

Only two things gave hope to the distraught governor: Later reports disclosed Michael began swimming a mile or two from shore instead of 15 or more miles out, and that there was no trace of the gasoline cans he was using as a makeshift raft.

They flew on to Hollandia in a chartered DC3 twin-engine plane and were briefed on the search by Governor General Dr. P. J. Platteel in the airport waiting room.

Four Africans Hanged For Woman's Murder

LIVINGSTONE, Northern Rhodesia, (AP)—Four Africans were hanged here Wednesday for the murder last year of a London-born housewife.

Protest demonstrations against the executions were anticipated but did not materialize, police said.

The victim, Lilian Burn, 38, died in a hospital after being burned when an African gang stopped her car near the Katanga border, threw gasoline through an open window and set it on fire.

Tornadoes Hit Texas Towns; Woman Killed

NACOGDOCHES, Tex. (UPI) — At least five tornadoes, one of them a killer, ripped through five towns and cities Wednesday in a storm front that hit parts of Texas with 65 mile-an-hour winds and hailstones as big as baseballs.

One person was killed in a twister and three other persons were seriously injured. Damage was extensive. Buildings were wrecked. Trees, utility poles and oil derricks toppled in the violent wind funnels.

High winds, hail and flooding rains added to damage in the state.

The tornadoes struck San Antonio and Kilgore and the three east Texas towns of Cushing, Looneyville and Trawick.

Heaviest tornado damage was at the Oak Flat area about two miles east of Cushing, in northwest Nacogdoches County. Five homes were destroyed and four heavily damaged.

Mrs. Blanche Collier, badly injured, died after being rushed to a Nacogdoches hospital for emergency surgery.

Her husband was seriously injured. Mrs. Marcus Sitton and Mrs. Cora Randle were severely cut by flying glass. All lived in the Oak Flats area.

One garage was destroyed and several homes damaged at San Antonio. A second funnel cloud was spotted over San Antonio about an hour after the tornado struck.

At San Antonio, Jose Rodriguez said the storm blew a 4x4 timber through the walls of a vacant house next to his home.

"It went through the house just like an arrow," he said.

The tornadoes were set off when a Pacific cool front pushed through the state and collided with warm, moist air.

West Virginian Added To 'Most Wanted' List

WASHINGTON (AP)—Franklin Eugene Alltop, a shotgun-toting robber who has been in jail or on the run almost continuously since 1952, was added Wednesday to the FBI's list of "Ten Most Wanted Fugitives."

Alltop, 28, has been sought since Feb. 19, 1960, when a federal warrant was issued at Huntington, W. Va., charging him with unlawful interstate flight to avoid prosecution for armed robbery.

He had escaped from the Wayne County, W. Va. jail a short time earlier. A native of Given, W. Va., he is 6 feet tall or 6 feet, 1 inch tall, weighs 170-180 pounds, and has brown hair, blue eyes, and a fair complexion. His identification marks include a scar and mole on the left temple, scars on the chin and right temple, a mole on the right cheek, and tatoos—"Norma" on the upper left arm and "Stub" on the upper right arm.

Americans Observe Thanksgiving Day

By The Associated Press

President Kennedy and Americans around the world pause Thursday, as the Pilgrims did 340 years ago, to feast and thank God for the harvest.

Thanksgiving Day was first celebrated by Pilgrims in Plymouth, Mass., at what was then the edge of a mighty wilderness. Thursday the observance will be marked by Americans in most parts of the globe, and by the President and his family at Hyannis Port, 34 miles from Plymouth.

The President, who will feast at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy, summed up the mixture of joy and solemnity with this proclamation:

"This year, as the harvest draws near its close, and the year approaches its end, awesome perils again remain to be faced. Yet we have, as in the past, ample reason to be thankful for the abundance of our blessings."

Plymouth townsfolk, dressed as Pilgrims, are parading from a model of the first Pilgrim house, past Plymouth Rock where the original settlers from England landed, and past a model of the Mayflower to First Church for services.

No matter where the celebration is held, the symbols still are the Bible and the turkey, a fowl first introduced to the Pilgrims by some of the more friendly Indians.

While cars, buses, trains and airplanes are crowded with homecomers, many won't be able to eat at the family table this year. And many of those are stretched around the globe at military posts.

The services, for the 16th time since World War II, are not forgetting those men. Turkey is being served in the mess halls, 6½ tons of it having been taken by train through Communist East where it will be eaten by 6,500 U.S. troops, their families and about 1,000 German guests.

After church services in the Army zone around Frankfurt in West Germany, soldiers are bringing German guests to share the meal there also. One company, stationed in Heidelberg, is entertaining 25 orphans.

Kennedy Given Laetare Medal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy Wednesday received the University of Notre Dame's Laetare Medal for 1961. The award has been presented annually to an outstanding American Catholic layman since 1883.

The gold medal in its blue velvet frame was presented to Kennedy in his office by Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, president of Notre Dame.

The citation saluted Kennedy for "the charity, the clam determination and imaginative courage of your statesmanship in this age of prolonged and ever-increasing danger."

De Gaulle Outlaws Opposition Group

PARIS (UPI) — President Charles de Gaulle Wednesday outlawed the right-wing Committee of Vincennes, the main political organization opposing his policy of eventual independence for Algeria.

The dissolution order was issued after De Gaulle met with his cabinet. It followed a rally last Thursday in which the committee denounced De Gaulle and praised the illegal Secret Army Organization (OAS) and its extremist leader, ex-Gen. Raoul Salan.

Terrorist activity against De Gaulle and the government continued. In Strasbourg, two bombs were exploded less than 24 hours before De Gaulle's scheduled arrival. One damaged a car of the Paris-Strasbourg train as it entered the station, carrying some of the president's motorcycle escort. No one was injured.

U.S. Foundation Fights Hunger

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy asked Americans Wednesday to remember when they sit down for Thanksgiving dinner that the world's battle against hunger still must be won.

The President made the plea at a White House ceremony at which he announced creation of the United States Freedom From Hunger Foundation.

Kennedy said the foundation will spearhead American participation in the United Nations Freedom From Hunger Campaign. The campaign will be launched Thursday.

At Kennedy's side as he spoke was Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, 89-year-old widow of the World War I president, and the famous contralto, Marian Anderson. Kennedy noted that Wilson shipped food abroad during World War I to help hungry Europe.

The newly formed foundation includes former President Harry S. Truman as well as 33 other prominent Americans. Among them is another former First Lady, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt.

Farmer Slain In Gun Battle With Officers

TANEYVILLE, Mo. (UPI)—An enraged farmer was shot to death Wednesday 12 hours after he turned his cabin deep in the Missouri Ozarks into a fortress and had held a small army of officers at bay with rifle, shotgun and pistol fire.

The Missouri Highway Patrol said the farmer, Bill Jenkins, 38, went berserk because an electric cooperative had not been quick enough in stringing power lines into his one-room cabin.

Lt. H. F. Wickham of the patrol's office in Springfield, one of 31 officers who laid seige to the barricaded cabin Tuesday night, said Jenkins was wounded seven times. "He was mortally wounded today by a rifle bullet which struck him in the back," Wickham said. Jenkins had been wounded six other times—in the legs and arms.

"The body was still warm when we entered the cabin," Wickham added.

The gunbattle began Tuesday night about 8 o'clock after Jenkins resisted arrest for abducting L. M. Speight, manager of the White River Electrical Cooperative at Forsyth, Mo. He kept officers on the defensive with gunfire from seven weapons. Speight later was released unharmed.

The seige was suspended late Tuesday night when heavy rain turned the area around the cabin into a muddy battlefield. When it resumed Wednesday, troopers moved in an armored car and an armored weapons carrier.

Several tear gas grenades were pumped into the cabin and when officers cautiously entered it at 8 a.m. They found Jenkins' body on the floor.

GSA Chief Resigns

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Administrator John L. Moore of the General Services Administration has submitted his resignation to President Kennedy, it was learned Wednesday.

Moore, 59, of of Philadelphia, has been head of the government housekeeping agency since February.

Strategy Set For Possible Berlin Talks

Leaders Reaffirm Pledge To Insure Free Allied Zone

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy and West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer declared Wednesday they have agreed on Allied strategy to negotiate with the Soviet Union on Berlin if the Kremlin is ready to be reasonable.

A joint communique climaxing three days of talks between the President and the chancellor pledged "their clear determination to insure the continuance of a free and vigorous life for the population of Berlin."

Summarizing the series of conferences, Kennedy and Adenauer said "there is substantial unanimity of view both on the substance of the problems and how to deal with them."

Agree On NATO

And further, the two Allied leaders stressed their agreement to work together to strengthen NATO should the prolonged Berlin crisis erupt into hostilities.

The communique did not spell out details of any strategic negotiating steps agreed to but stressed they would protect the "legitimate interests of all concerned."

Adenauer, departing Washington Wednesday evening, was to confer personally with French President Charles de Gaulle and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan. These talks will be followed by an Allied foreign ministers conference in Paris next month.

Blame Soviet

At the outset of the communique, Kennedy and Adenauer again blamed the Soviet Union for creating the Berlin crisis, then said that they "are in accord on the basic elements which will permit a peaceful resolution of this crisis through negotiation if there is reasonableness on the part of the Soviet Union." The communique said the 44-year-old Kennedy and 85-year-old Adenauer exchanged views "in a frank and cordial atmosphere." The conferences were held after a growing belief here and abroad that misunderstanding was endangering the U.S.-German approach to the challenge posed by the Communists to Berlin.

Four "Sit-In" Negro Pastors Under Arrest

BALTIMORE (AP) — Five Negroes, including four ministers, were arrested Wednesday after a sit-in demonstration at a downtown restaurant.

The group included the Rev. Logan Kearse, 40, pastor of Cornerstone Baptist Church and leader of anti-segregation demonstrations in the Baltimore area the past two weekends.

The other men were identified as the Rev. George Crawley, 44, pastor at St.Paul's Baptist Church the Rev. Herbert O. Edwards, 32, pastor of Trinity Baptist Church, the Rev. Matthew R. Silver, 36, pastor of Concord Baptist church, and Warren Shaw, 37, president of Manning-Shaw Realty Co.

Police said the five men entered Hooper's Restaurant, scene of another demonstration Nov. 11 in which immediately was cleared of all silverware, ash trays and condiments.

After a member of the party obtained another ash tray from an adjoining table, restaurant officials read the trespassing law to the group. When they refused to leave, police were summoned, warrants were issued, and the men were arrested.

New Autobahn Barriers Go Up

BERLIN (UPI)—The Communists erected twin I-beam steel traffic barriers Wednesday at each end of the Berlin-West Germany Autobahn in a new threat to Allied traffic.

No immediate use was made of the baffles, however, and traffic moved freely.

In Berlin, Communist police manning the East-West barrier fired at and then arrested an East German boy who picked up a food package thrown over the dividing wall by West German friends.

West Berlin police reported erroneously Tuesday the zigzag baffles were in place when they saw Communist workers move the I-beams into position. They actually were installed Wednesday.

American officials confirmed that the Communists had erected twin I-beam barricades, about 15 yards apart, on the right and left lanes leading from the city to Helmstedt in West Germany. A driver would be forced to slow and zigzag around the steel barriers.

Germans Admit Spying For U.S. At Russ Trial

MOSCOW (UPI) — Two West German students confessed Wednesday to spying for the United States. They told a Soviet military court U.S. agents sent them to Russia through "lying and deception."

Peter Sonntag, 22, and Walter Naumann, 29, were arrested Sept. 27 in the Soviet border city of Chermotsy. They were charged with having photographed radar installations, airports, high voltage lines, and other military objectives. Both pleaded guilty.

They were among seven Western tourists, including an American, arrested this year on espionage charges in the Soviet Union.

Their defense, conducted by Soviet Attorney Mikhail Grinev, the man who defended U-2 pilot Francis Gary Powers, made it appear as though the U.S. intelligence service was really in the dock.

Sonntag's testimony flowed so freely that the chief judge interrupted him at one point and told him to make it briefer.

"I did not seek out this job," he said. "The Americans with their deceit played an important role. A great part in my doing what I did was played by the lying and deception of the Americans, who only shortly before my trip set before us the true goal."

Naumann, who followed Sonntag to the stand, repeated much the same story: that the students had been approached in Heidelberg, West Germany, by American agents, and duped into becoming spies.

They said they were given to understand that an American newspaper would pay for their trip to Russia in exchange for articles. But then they were required to sign a paper swearing secrecy.

'Cactus Jack,' His Speech Still Pungent, Reaches 93

UVALDE, Tex. (UPI) — Turned out in a swallow-tailed coat, former Vice President John Nance (Cactus Jack) Garner observed his 93rd birthday Wednesday with his memory sharp, appetite good and speech still pungent.

He did not feel up to a birthday party, although there was a cake with one candle. But old friends kept dropping by all day to congratulate him and he welcomed them all.

Garner served as vice president the first two terms of President Franklin D. Roosevelt. He broke with Roosevelt over the third term issue in 1940 and went home, vowing never to cross the Potomac River again.

He has lived in Uvalde ever since. He went deer hunting until six years ago and gave up drinking and smoking when he was 90. Garner credits his long life to eating grapefruit regularly.

Ross Brumfield, who hunted deer with Garner for 37 years, told Garner he shot an eight-point buck this year from a blind.

He asked Garner whether he remembered the muleshoe he gave him years ago when they were hunting. Garner said he did and Brumfield reminisced that he told Garner to throw the shoe over his left shoulder and make a wish.

The wish was: "Give me health, and I'll get the rest."

"Your wish sure has come true," Brumfield said.

Garner dressed up for his birthday in the suit he used to wear to official functions in Washington. It included a frock tailed coat and a pair of black trousers, with a stripe down the sides.

Finns wished their president well and hoped he could help preserve the country's independence and its neutrality.

Kekkonen will arrive in Moscow Thursday and will fly to Novosibirsk, deep in the heart of the Siberian virgin lands, for his meeting with Khrushchev on Friday.

CORE Releases Desegregated Restaurant List

By The Associated Press

A Congress of Racial Equality official released Wednesday the names of restaurants on U. S. 40 whose operators have said they will serve Negroes.

Only a few minutes earlier, the Maryland Commission on Interracial Problems and Relations had declined to release the names, saying such action would damage race relations.

The list was released in Washington by Julius W. Hobson, president of the Washington Chapter of CORE. In doing so, Hobson said:

"We in CORE do not hail this as a complete victory, but as a significant step toward justice, and full equality toward all. We implore the other restaurant owners in the states of Maryland and Delaware to follow the overdue example of those listed here."

The names of 47 restaurants—35 in Maryland and 12 in Delaware—were listed.

The commission, in declining to make public the list, said:

"We feel ... that in the interest of furthering the cause of desegregation and the success so far attained, we must withhold such publication.

"We further believe that the publication of that list today might invite the involvement of groups other than CORE in this delicate situation. We must abide by the agreement we made in good faith with the committee of restaurateurs that the names of those who voluntarily agreed to provide services to all people shall not be made public by this commission."

In the statement, signed by chairman William C. Rogers, the commission also said a subcommittee has been appointed to meet with Dr. Carl Everstine, director of the Bureau of Legislative Research.

The statement said the subcommittee would work out a bill, to be introduced during the regular session of the Legislature, aimed at ending discrimination in public accommodations.

Maryland Briefs

WESTMINSTER, Md. (AP)—Arthur H. Griffee, 69, a retired school teacher and former principal of Winfield Elementary School has filed for the Democratic nomination to a Carroll County seat in the House of Delegates.

Griffee will be making his first bid for political office, and will be bucking the organization's slate in the May primary.

TOWSON, Md. (AP) — Edward D. Hardesty, 30, assistant Baltimore County solicitor, announced his candidacy Wednesday for a seat in the House of Delegates.

Hardesty said he will run on the Democratic ticket headed by gubernatorial candidate George P. Mahoney.

BALTIMORE (AP)—Passenger traffic at Friendship International Airport last month increased 64 per cent over the figures for October 1960, the Department of Aviation said Wednesday.

Substantial gains also were reported in air freight express shipments. The total cargo handled, 1,182 tons, represented a 50 per cent increase over the previous year.

A total of 121,313 passengers used the terminal during October, compared with 74,179 in October 1960.

BALTIMORE (AP)—Two-week refresher courses for Baltimore's entire 3,000-member police force began this week.

Police Commissioner Bernard J. Schmidt said it would be several years before all members of the force complete the courses which range from murder investigation procedures to discipline and courtesy.

BALTIMORE (AP)—James P. Murray, 30, a federal narcotics agent, died of a heart attack Wednesday as he was preparing to leave his home for work.

Murray, a native of New York, had been with the Federal Bureau of Narcotics here one year after three years as an agent in New York. He was to have been a witness in a narcotics case in a federal court next Monday.

Irwin I. Greenfeld, district supervisor of the bureau, said Murray was on limited duty after a previous heart attack.

"Jumboized" Tanker Undergoing Tests

BALTIMORE (AP)—The S. S. David D. Irwin sailed Wednesday for Chesapeake Bay trials after she was cut in half and a new, longer midsection inserted.

The ship is the largest tanker ever to be "jumboized," as the lengthening process is called.

The deadweight tonnage of the ship, owned by Pure Oil Co., was increased from 16,300 to 25,000 tons. She was lengthened from 520 to 630 feet and the beam, or width, was increased from 68 to 75 feet. The total displacement was increased from 21,840 to 32,500 tons.

The conversion, at the Bethlehem Key Highway yards, involved insertion of a new, 415-foot midbody built in Japan between the ship's bow and stern sections.

Because they have no firearms, natives of the Marquesas Islands in the Pacific harpoon wild cattle for food.

Thanksgiving Message Issued By Gov. Tawes

The governor's office announced Wednesday that Tawes will spend the day with the governor's 94-year-old mother, Mrs. Alice Tawes, and other members of the family.

The governor issued this Thanksgiving message to the people of Maryland before leaving for Crisfield:

"Mrs. Tawes and I send our greetings and best wishes to the people of Maryland on this day on which Americans give thanks to God for the peace of their nation and the well-being of its citizens.

"Many Thanksgiving days have come and gone since the Pilgrims first gave thanks for their freedom and their first harvest, and since that time our freedom and our prosperity have been threatened perhaps as never before in history.

"And yet, we have many reasons to be grateful for our blessings. We have freedom; we have strength; we have a measure of material prosperity. But most of all, we have hope for the future and confidence that the courage and determination which are our heritage will preserve these blessings for ourselves and our prosperity.

"On this Thanksgiving Day, 1961, let us all, in reverence and humility, thank God for peace, freedom and the plenteous life we are enjoying, and pray that we may be able to bequeath these blessings to the generations to come."

Five Of Family Perish In Fire

DARIEN, N. Y. (UPI) — A family of five died early Wednesday when fire raced through their isolated, 123-year-old farmhouse in this western New York hamlet.

Despite desperate rescue attempts, the rapidly spreading flames trapped and killed a father mother and three daughters. Two other persons living in the two-story frame dwelling were burned seriously.

The dead were John C. Amedick, 46, a dairy farmer, his wife, Margaret Mary, 43, and their daughters, Noreen, 10, Patricia Ann, 7, and Jacqueline, 15 months.

BALTIMORE (AP)—Police held for questioning the 26-year-old son of a man shot and killed Wednesday while working at the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad machine shop in Southwest Baltimore.

Police said Joseph Nash, 57, was shot by a man who walked into the shop and fired a shotgun from pointblank range. The assailant then told railroad police of the shooting.

The elder Nash had returned to the shop only Tuesday after being laid off for a year.

Irish Actress Comes Into Her Own As Singer

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Maureen O'Hara, the veteran and beautiful actress, is aglow over the success of Maureen O'Hara, the singer—and for very good reasons:

She always preferred singing to movies. She began her theatrical career as a singer in her native Ireland. And her versatile showwoman ability has kept her on top while other veteran female stars have dropped out of sight.

"I told the studio I was a singer when I first came to Hollywood and begged them to put me in a musical," she said in the study of her Bel Air home. "But because I had been established as a dramatic actress in my first picture, 'Jamaica Inn' with Charles Laughton, they decided to let well enough alone.

"And pretty soon I was just the girl on the camel or the pirate ship. And I guess pirate girls don't sing."

Those days are past. Now a recording artist as well as film star, her latest disc is an album of Irish songs—"not the usual saccharine stuff like 'When Irish Eyes Are Smiling,' but real native tunes. I want to show third-and fourth-generation Irish that they have a proud heritage."

Few stars can match Miss O'Hara's versatile entertaining talents. In the past 18 months, her films included "The Parent Trap" and "The Deadly Companions" and she's now at work in "Mr. Hobbs Takes a Vacation" with James Stewart. She has sung on TV with the Ed Sullivan show and Perry Como, as well as "The Telephone Hour" and the Dinah Shore show. She did the live TV drama "The Scarlet Pimpernel."

And she made her Broadway debut in the musical "Christine"—which, while short-lived, brought p'audits for her strong, beautiful voice.

"Knock wood," said the flame-haired performer, "I've never been out of work, because I can play any medium. Today, too many people who are not pros enter movies. You have to be an entertainer. They don't make as many movies as they used to—and you've got to stay before your public some way, or you'll be forgotten.

"There was a time when once you proved your talent as an actress in front of the movie camera, you had it made. No more."

Of her singing, she said: "Before I won admission to the drama school run by the Abbey Theater in Dublin, I had worked from the age of 5 in Irish festivals, singing, dancing, swashbuckling and even playing Shakespeare. Audiences, even the toughest of them, don't scare me."

Wearing a black-a n d-white check dress and speaking with the brogue she has never entirely lost, Miss O'Hara admitted one of the reasons she has stayed on top may be that she has avoided Hollywood roles that unnecessarily emphasize sex, violence and perversity.

"I'm not a prude," she said. "In fact, in 'Deadly Companions,' I play a pretty earthy woman—but there's a tasteful reason for it. The best explanation is that I've tried never to do anything that offended me. I think self-censorship is the best censorship.

"I'm not much for real censorship, because I think anything forced is bad. It's like telling a 9-year-old boy, 'Don't you dare touch your father's ciagerettes.' You know darned well he's going to sneak off and do it. I think we would have been better off without our censorship here."

Miss O'Hara, whose topflight career has included such films as "The Quiet Man," "Miracle on 34th Street," "How Green Was My Valley" and "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," has a beautiful 17-year-old daughter, Bronwyn, who also is trying to cut out an acting career.

"But I don't want it as a lifetime profession," said Bronwyn, joining the interview. "My profession will be, I hope, as a mother of 13 children."

"And I'm supposed to take care of them," said Maureen. "But I guess I'm lucky. When she was younger, she wanted 22 kids."

Do-It-Yourself Medical Care Program Launched By Public Health Service

By LOUIS CASSELS

WASHINGTON (UPI)—In peace time, when plenty of doctors are available, it's risky business to attempt self-diagnosis and home treatment of serious illness.

But do-it-yourself medical care could become a necessity in the event of a nuclear attack.

That's why the U.S. Public Health Service is launching a long-range program to train 50 million Americans—one member of each family if possible—in the basic techniques of medical self-help.

Cooperating in the vast training program are the American Medical Association, the Office of Civil Defense, and the health and education departments of all 50 states.

The Public Health Service has prepared a course of eight two-hour lessons covering such topics as treatment of shock and burns; how to splint a broken leg; how to deliver a baby; how to give artificial respiration; how to control bleeding; and protective measures against radioactive fallout.

The course will be taught by physicians, nurses and specially trained lay personnel. It is designed so that ninth grade students can readily understand it.

Each state will work out its own detailed plans for offering the course on the community level. It is anticipated that the course will be made available to high school students, possibly during the regular school day, and to adults of all ages in daytime and evening classes.

State health officers, school officials, medical societies and civil defense directors are being briefed on the training program in three regional conferences this fall. The first was held in Brooklyn, N.Y., Oct. 16-19, the second at Alameda, Calif., Nov. 19-22, and the third will be held at Battle Creek, Mich., Dec. 4-7.

Local training sessions will begin in most states in early 1962, on a modest try-out basis. The plan is to give the training to 300,000 persons throughout the nation by the end of 1962.

During 1963, local courses will be stepped up sharply, with a goal of 3 million trainees.

Further expansion of the program is planned in 1964 and thereafter, until the goal of 50 million students is attained.

The Public Health Service is aware of the possibility that some people who take the course may be tempted to try self-treatment in ordinary times when they could obtain the services of a physician. It will be stressed in all courses that "self care is not a substitute for good medical care by a qualified physician when available," and that harmful effects may result from delayed or neglected medical treatment.

Overriding the possibility of abuse in normal times, the Public Health Service says, is "the urgent need for preparing people to meet their own health requirements to the best of their ability in the event of a national disaster, such as a nuclear attack." After such an attack, survivors might be isolated from professional medical help for long periods of time, and dependent on whatever help they could give themselves or each other.

The American Medical Association endorses this view. Dr. Harold Lueth, chairman of the AMA Council on National Security, said recently:

"Subsequent to a mass attack on this country there would be great disparity between the number of casualties and the number of available physicians. However, many injuries will be amenable to competently administered self-aid and first-aid treatment. Therefore, it is imperative that the general public receive training and become proficient in the application of medical self-help procedures."

The blue whale is the largest mammal of all. It is about 105 feet in length and weighs 131 tons.

Wall Street Views

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market appears to be in the foothills of the anticipated year end recovery, a Wall Street analyst said Tuesday.

The opinion came from Kenneth Ward of the brokerage firm, Hayden, Stone & Co.

The indicated target level, he said, is 750-770 on the Dow Jones industrial average.

He finds support for his view in these market-influencing factors: a quieting of the international situation, improvement in general business and gains in corporate earnings and dividends.

However, Ward said he expects the further advance to be ultra-selective.

"Many attractive individual stocks are just now in the process of completing the necessary readjustment which some of the recent leaders, and especially the averages, completed some weeks ago," he said.

"Many good values are still being held to exceedingly low levels because many individuals are still undecided about augmenting or initiating a market position right here and are maintaining a cautious attitude.

"However, the purchase and ownership of selected common stocks, provided they have been chosen on the basis of conservatively estimated earning power and purchased with regard to correct market timing, should prove very surprising and profitable."

Another analyst who feels that the market has enough momentum to carry it into new high ground is Walter Mintz of Shearson, Hammill & Co.

He believes that the market will be helped by these developments:

Excellent automobile retail sales.

The probability that early next year Congress again will consider tax proposals designed to encourage capital expenditurs.

The Treasury may announce further revisions in depreciation schedules which also may have favorable effects on capital goods demand.

Luanda, capital of Portuguese Angola, settled in 1576, now has a population of more than 200,000.

Thanksgiving

From the forest cold and murkey
Rode the first Thanksgiving turkey
On a Pilgram far from fat
Picking arrows from his hat.
Mrs. Pilgrim and the kids
Fired the kettle, watched the lids.
"Gee", they said, "We're glad we're living
This will be a swell Thanksgiving".
All they had was corn and turk,
Indians, winter, prayer and work.
Compare our lot with those early Yanks
And every day's a day of thanks.

Woman To Woman

By PATRICIA McCORMICK

NEW YORK (UPI) — A teen-ager hears that the super bomb can incinerate his home, his school, his church — his whole town and many of the people in it.

Does this psychological fallout affect his behavior?

"Many time the answer is yes," Jesse Nemtzow, a psychiatric social worker said in an interview. One proof: Harmful effects of psychological fallout are showing up more and more among teen-agers in trouble.

"Many of the 1,000 troubled teen-agers my agency sees in a year feel that they are here for a very limited time," Nemtzow said.

He is chief psychiatric social worker for the Jewish Board of Guardians of New York, one of the nation's oldest helping-hand agencies.

"They want to pack a lot of living into the time that's left," he said. "They don't even want to get married. They figure there isn't enough time for that."

Teen-ager concern over the bomb was one situation Nemtzow described to dispose of some "myths" about adolescents.

Nemtzow said other myths giving rise to trouble between parents and their adolescent sons and daughters include:

—Myth: That parents can not communicate with teen-agers. "If parents treat them with respect and not like little children, the communication line will be unplugged."

—Myth: That you can understand your adolescents because once you were a teen-ager. "Teen agers today have much more competition in school. The pressure is to perform. It is much harder, for example, for a youngster to maintain a 90 average today than it was 10 or 15 years ago."

—Myth: That you should seek psychological or psychiatric help for a troubled adolescent only when a severe disorder shows up. "When troubles of an emotional or psychological nature repeat and a pattern begins to show, seek help at once. You don't wait until the whole house is a fire to call the fire department."

'Sacred Cow' Headed For Air Museum

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Sacred Cow, the first airplane used to carry American presidents to such famous international meetings as Yalta and Potsdam, will be added to the National Air Museum, it was announced Tuesday.

In addition to flying President Franklin D. Roosevelt and former President Harry S. Truman to to historic World War II meetings, the DC4 carried Winston Churchill, former President Herbert Hoover, Madame Chiang Kai-shek, John Foster Dulles and the late Gen. George Marshall.

The plane will be presented by the Air Force to the Smithsonian Institution's museum on Dec. 4.

NASA To Extend Drive For Scientists, Engineers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The space agency will extend its drive to recruit 2,000 additional scientists and engineers to nine more cities.

The recruiting drive opened Nov. 3. James E. Webb, director of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) said the additional scientists and engineers are needed to staff programs for exploring the moon and planets.

Recruiting teams already have interviewed prospective space employes in Chicago, Denver and Phoenix.

The teams will spend about three days in each of the nine cities to be visited this month and next. In the West, a team will go to Los Angeles Nov. 27, San Diego Dec. 1, San Francisco Dec. 5, and Seattle Dec. 9.

Other recruiters will visit Cincinnati Nov. 27, Pittsburgh Dec. 1, Philadelphia Dec. 7, Washington D. C., Dec. 12, and Baltimore Dec. 15.

The growing trend toward piggyback, containerization and special-purpose cars is expected to bring about a complete change in the rolling stock of U. S. railroads within the next decade.

U.S. Plans Several Lunar Expeditions

NEW YORK (UPI) — Space agency chief James E. Webb indicated Tuesday that the United States plans to send several exploration teams to the moon.

As officially described heretofore, the lunar landing program called only for putting a three-man party on the moon before the end of this decade.

In a talk prepared for the Manufacturing Chemists' Association, Webb made a cryptic reference to "the first flights" to the moon. In these first flights, he said, "the stay on the moon will be short, perhaps only a few hours."

He said the men would stay on the moon only long enough to gather soil and rock samples, check lunar radioactivity, photograph the lunar surface and the heavens, and make a few other quick investigations.

Space enthusiasts have talked of using the moon as a base for launching manned expeditions to Mars and Venus. Scientists have dreamed of establishing an astronomical observatory on the moon. They also talk about the moon's possible value as a military base.

Science At Work

By The Associated Press

A study of women's voices, beneficial fallout from fallout atoms, and concepts about the moon are subjects in science and engineering:

Female Voices

A woman's voice may have a "natural priority in commanding a man's attention," says a research study made for the Air Force, but her voice has limitations which could rule out women as broadcasters for aircraft warning systems.

The trouble, it finds, is a lack of harmonics which can lead to unintelligibility, and in the long run it is believed the male voice will prove more acceptable to male operators of radio equipment.

Fallout Benefit

As an example, radioactive carbon 14 from tests has helped trace air movements around the earth. Past studies have shown it takes about a year for carbon 14 to travel from one hemisphere to the other, after the carbon enters the lower atmosphere, reports Gordon J. Fergusson of the University of California at Los Angeles. The recent Soviet tests may yield new data on the transfer of particles, and hence air movements, from the arctic region.

Moon Bombing

Until men or probes can actually explore the moon, scientists can theorize about its puzzles, based on observations and deductions.

And one moon student, Harold Urey, thinks the major features of the moon—its great "seas" or plains and its mountains—were formed about 4½ billion years ago at a time of great collisions with meteors.

The bombardment, he believes, lasted a relatively short time, meaning probably less than one million years. Other hits have been scored since then, but Urey thinks they have mostly produced only small craters.

There was at least one tremendous crash, he adds. It hit with an impact equal to about 460 billion medium atomic bombs, or more than 100 million times the energy of the largest known earthquake. It apparently happened about three billion years ago, the University of California scientist writes in the annual report of the Smithsonian Institution.

Electric Servants

Taking a 10-year look ahead, a General Motors Corp. executive predicts:

"Cooking will be done in seconds, dishes washed and stored in minutes, and completely automatic cleaning devices will seek out and evaluate the cleaning problem and then place a program into operation to cope with it."

"Fantastic? Not really," says John J. Ahern. "It is only a simple step from our industrial closed-circuit television equipment to a home television system which watches children in the yard and controls all entrances to the house."

Chicago Grains

CHICAGO (UPI) —Grain futures lost an early advance to close mostly lower Wednesday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Wheat finished unchanged to off ⅝, corn off ½ to up ¼, oats unchanged to up ⅝, rye unchanged to off ¾ and soybeans off 2⅜ to up ⅛.

Prices ruled mostly firm throughout the morning on exporter buying and demand for feeds based on predictions for widespread rain or snow in the Midwest. Demand fell off near the close. Deferred contracts ended with the biggest losses.

Wheat was very slow, featured by scattered buying and small liquidation of December holdings. Traders watched reports about Red China's great need for grain, but they saw little chance of U.S. sales under present laws.

Corn firmed early on commercial and exporter buying. Hedging followed reports that the government sold 2,420,000 bushels of corn Nov. 20. Local traders also bought futures.

Oats were firm with corn.

News of a record October crush touched off active buying in soybeans. Crushings totaled 36,223,000 bushels against 22,953,000 a month earlier and 35,563,000 a year ago, according to the Census Bureau. Country marketings remained light.

Exporters said Turkey bought 1,800,000 bushels of wheat, Israel 1,080,000 bushels of corn and Europe parcels of white wheat, corn and soybeans. Jamaica was credited with 240,000 bushels of corn.

Outside markets were mixed.

Fur Dealer Pawns Customers' Coats

NEW YORK (UPI)—A fur dealer, charged with pawning 70 fur coats he did not own, turned himself in to authorities rather than face the women who left them for summer storage, Dist. Atty. Frank S. Hogan said Tuesday.

Milton Brozen, 52, of Flushing, Queens, pawned $100,000 worth of coats with the intention of redeeming them this fall, Hogan said. Brozen said he was unable to reclaim the coats because of financial troubles. He was charged with grand larceny.

Two Prevalent Air Safety Theories Tentatively Upset By FAA

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Aviation Agency (FAA) Tuesday tentatively knocked down two widely-held theories about air safety — that tranquilizers affect pilot performance and that rear-facing seats can save live in a crash.

The FAA said experiments at its medical research center in Oklahoma City, Okla., have discounted both theories, although further tests are being made.

The tranquilizer experiments, for example, involved only six pilots. An FAA medical spokesman said the agency wants to try drugs on a test group of at least 100 pilots as well as air traffic controllers.

Even the preliminary results were considered significant, however. Tranquilizers were reported to have played a possible role in the crash of a Piedmont airlines DC3 near Charlottesville, Va., Oct 30, 1959.

The Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) blamed the crash on a navigation error by a captain who had been under psychiatric treatment, which included the use of tranquilizers.

The CAB conceded the pilot may have discontinued the drugs at least 40 days before the accident. But it said the accident underlined a need for research into various drugs that might affect crew performance. The FAA program was the direct result of the CAB report on the Piedmont crash.

The six 'guinea pig" pilots taking the drugs, which also included anti-histamine pills, were put through tough flight situations in simulators. The FAA said so long as the drugs were used in prescribed doses, there were no effects on cockpit performance.

FAA's experiments on rear-facing seats bore out previous research. They showed that in any crash at a low enough speed to permit survival, it makes no difference in what direction a seat faces. The tests demonstrated that the most important factor preventing injury in a low-speed, "survivable" crash is the strength of the seat floor attachments and belts.

W. Va. May Get School Aid

WASHINGTON (AP)—West Virginia would receive between $5.5 million and $6 million for schools during the first year under a new aid to education bill proposed by Rep. Cleveland M. Bailey, D-W. Va.

Bailey said the state's share would depend upon which equalization formula for needy states is selected. In addition, he said, West Virginia would be able to get financial assistance for special and experimental work in education.

The latter would be limited under the Bailey bill to 10 per cent of a state's allotment.

Thus, if West Virginia's share is $6 million, he said, the state could apply for an additional $600,000 for this special use.

Bailey said he plans early action on his bill which calls for federal aid totaling between $417 million and $440 million the first year.

"I'm sending up trial ballons and hope to get administration approval," he said.

Seek Fare Boost

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UPI)—The trustees of the New Haven Railroad said Tuesday they will seek a 10 per cent increase in commutation fares to keep the line in operation. No increase in basic one-way and round - trip fares will be sought now, the trustees said.

Banks Ask Right To Purchase Stocks

FAIRMONT, W. Va. (UPI) — The Upper Monongahela Valley Association is urging Gov. W. W. Barron to include in his call to the 1962 Legislature a bill that would permit state banks to buy stock in small business investment companies.

The move is being formulated by UMVA president John D. Hoblitzell Jr. and legislative chairman James H. Coleman Jr. They said such an investment corporation in this area would provide financial assistance to new industries.

Bankers from this region met in Fairmont recently and discussed the possibility of setting up such a company. It was determined however, that 20 of the 43 banks in the area are state banks and could not participate.

Caution Urged In Weekend Traveling

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Keeping the Thanksgiving weekend holiday traffic toll to a minimum will call for increased personal responsibility on the part of every motorist and pedestrian, a West Virginia Safety Council spokesman said.

"Heavy traffic and the usual hurry and bustle of a holiday weekend will challenge the skill and the judgment of all drivers and walkers," said managing director Charles Hopkins.

Noting that six persons died on state highways during the 1960 Thanksgiving weekend, Hopkins cautioned drivers:

"Be alert at all times. Do not let familiar surroundings lessen your alertness. Remember that most accidents occur within 25 miles of the motorist's residence."

Foreign Tennis Players To Be Flown To U.S.

Will Participate In National Matches

NEW YORK (AP)—Uncle Sam will try to give tennis a much-needed lift next year by turning the National Championships at Forest Hills into a giant international spectacle like Wimbledon.

George E. Barnes of Chicago, president of the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association, has announced plans to have 85 foreign players, including representatives of the Soviet Union, flown here for the annual event.

The tournament would be extended to last two weeks, instead of the usual 10 days — again matching Wimbledon's "dedicated fortnight."

The star-studded international field will be made possible through the cooperation of the People-To-People Sports Committee, headed by Col. Edward Egan. This is a government-supported committee aimed at bettering good will among nations through sports.

The People-To-People Sports Committee would help raise funds for transporting and paying the expenses of the invited players.

Besides Russia, countries which will be invited to send representatives include Sweden, Germany, Spain, England, Denmark, Ireland, Hungary, France, Italy, Yugoslavia, South Africa, Australia, New Zealand, India, Japan, Malaya, Austria, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Switzerland, South American countries, Mexico and Canada.

Barnes said he will meet with USLTA and West Side Tennis Club officials later this year to make plans for housing of the invaders and for qualifying eliminations.

In the past, the tournament singles fields have been restricted to 128 men and 64 women. In recent years, there has been a sharp decline in European and other foreign entries.

If the plan is a success, the U.S. nationals can expect to draw the top Davis Cup talent of Europe, including such players as Nicola Pietrangeli and Orlando Sirola of Italy and Jan Erik Landquist of Sweden. Also the best women players of the world would be included in the giant "operation tennis lift."

Plans for the program were discussed at a luncheo. of tennis officials and devotees.

Egan said the project would cost around $100,000. Funds will be solicited from followers of the sport and from sponsors of other tournaments, who may get benefit of the imported talent.

Turkey For Prisoners

JOLIET, Ill. (UPI)—The 5,240 prisoners at Illinois state penitentiary will be served an estimated 16 tons of food Thanksgiving Day, officials said Tuesday. The midday feast will include fried chicken, giblet gravy, sweet potatoes and creamed peas.

Santa's Rating In Italy Up, But Befana Still Leading

ROME (UPI)—Santa Claus is becoming more popular in Italy but he still has a long way to go to catch up with the good witch "Befana."

San Nicolas, as he is called here, was not associated with Christmas gifts until recent years. Befana, a gray-haired witch riding a broomstick, is the traditional gift-supplier for Italian children on Epiphany Day, Jan. 6.

Santa has been gaining in popularity in northern Italy since the end of World War II but Befana still is the children's delight in Rome and the south.

Many Roman children, moreover, put an added strain on their parents' purses by recognizing both Befana and Santa.

The kind witch Befana tempers her generosity with a little justice. Good kiddies get toys and dolls and naughty ones a stocking full of coal.

A select group of adults also benefits from Befana. On Epiphany Day, motorists leave bottles of wine, cakes, socks, ties, handkerchiefs and sometimes even golden or silver whistles on traffic policemen's platforms. Needless to say, few traffic tickets are handed out on Epiphany Day.

This tradition probably goes back to the days of the Roman chariot drivers when once a year they paid a "sorceress" who stood on the Appian Way a "tip" for good luck on their journeys.

Santa Claus is believed here to be a corruption of the Latin "Santus Nicolaus," who actually existed. He was a charitable priest who became Bishop of Myra in Lycia, Asia Minor, about 16 centuries ago.

As St. Nicolas, he became known for his generosity and tradition says he even supplied dowries for poor girls who wanted to marry.

In Italy, St. Nicolas is considered the patron saint of navigators. There is a legend that he once stopped with his prayers a storm that threatened to sink a ship loaded with pilgrims going to the Holy Land.

Italian fishermen stole St. Nicolas' body from Lycia in 1087 and removed it to Bari, Italy, for reburial. Pope Urban II consecrated his crypt two years later and the Norman king, Roger, built the Church of St. Nicolas in 1129.

A chapel near the crypt contains a silver altar under which the saint is buried.

St. Nicolas Day is celebrated May 6 with prayers and pilgrimages of fishermen to Bari. Children also pray to him on his feast day, Dec. 6, for his protection.

Nov. 29 Conference

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy will hold his next news conference at 10 a.m. EST Wednesday, Nov. 29, the White House announced Monday. It will not be broadcast or televised live.

Cables help Norwegian farmers plow nearly perpendicular coastal fields. An engine, secured at the top of the hill, pulls plow and harrow up the steep inclines by wire. Bundles of hay also scale the mountain-side on the versatile cables.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am eight years of age. Some things worry me a lot because I can't figure out the answer. You answer people all kinds of things every day so maybe you can answer me this one.

My mother takes different kinds of pills for different things. The white pills are for her headaches. The green pills are for her nerves. The red pills are to help her blood.

How does a pill know what it is supposed to do once it gets inside a person? How come the pills don't get mixed up? I asked my father about this and he said the older I get the dumber my questions are. I think he just doesn't know the answer. Can you help me? —BILLY

DEAR BILLY: A pill doesn't have a brain so it doesn't know what it is supposed to do. But lots of things happen which have nothing to do with brains and here is another example.

Water turns to ice when the air is very cold because this is a law of nature.

Pills do their work according to laws of nature, too. Doctors know what certain pills will do inside the human body because the pills have been tested in laboratories. So pills don't have to know anything, Billy — just the doctors.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am pregnant and must go to a physician soon. This is creating a real problem in our marriage.

My husband wants me to go to his brother-in-law who is an obstetrician because it won't cost us anything. I don't like this brother-in-law and the thought of having him as my O.B. makes me nauseated.

I tried to explain my feelings but my husband says I should grow up. Furthermore, he points out that if I go to another O.B. it may suggest that I have no confidence in J and it could hurt his practice. So what am I to do? —P.G. HEADACHE

DEAR HEADACHE: A relaxed and comfortable relationship between you and your obstetrician is far more important than the money you can save by going to a relative.

Tell your husband you'll save on something else and insist on selecting the physician you want.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just finished the letter signed, "Old School." The mother was worried about how her daughter was going to run a home when she didn't even know how to fry an egg.

Well, tell the mother she doesn't need to worry. If her daughter is going to college she can probably read. If she can read she can cook.

The day we married my wife couldn't make a pot of coffee. She bought herself some cook books and made up her mind she'd learn. Believe it or not, inside of five months she was cooking rings around my mother who was one of the best.

This proves that all a girl needs is normal intelligence and the desire to learn. Of course it's better if she has had some experience, but it's not essential. The best cooks tell me they learned on their own and not from their mothers. —CORNING, N.Y.

DEAR ANN: My father is like a dictator. He thinks a girl of 15 is an infant.

Two weeks ago the kids had a beer-bust on the beach. Dad said I couldn't go because the Saturday before I got in too late. (Ike's car broke down.) When I told Ike I couldn't go to the beer-bust, he said he'd come over to see me. I knew my old man wouldn't let him in the house because I was supposed to be in solitary, so I told Ike to climb in through my bedroom window.

At about 10:30 we heard my Dad coming down the hall so Ike got under my bed. Our dog was under the bed and Ike must have stepped on him. Anyway the dog yelped and my dad found Ike.

Now I'm grounded for a month. Do you realize this is four miserable weeks? I'll crack up. How can I get my Dad to trust me? —STALAG 17

DEAR STALAG: Trust must be earned—and it must be earned one day at a time by consistently honorable behavior.

I'm not surprised you're in hot water. No honorable girl would invite her boy friend to sneak into the house through the window and then hide under the bed.

If you want to be treated like an honest and mature person cut out the curves and play it straight.

CONFIDENTIAL TO UPSET: Brown eyes can be inherited from grandparents. Tell him thanks for the vote of confidence—the worm.

Are you tempted to smoke because the crowd does? If so, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Teenage Smoking," enclosing with your request 10c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Sidewalk Santa Needs More Than A 'Ho-Ho-Ho'

NEW YORK (UPI) — It takes more than an ability to voice a hearty "Merry Christmas, ho-ho-ho" to make a good sidewalk Santa Claus, according to the Volunteers of America.

The 2,000 Santas on duty across the United States for the Volunteers, also must master rigid rules of sidewalk etiquette.

The Kris Kringles attend special schools where they are taught the "do's and don'ts" of their profession before they can receive their red costumes, white beards and chimneys.

The Schools for Santas are directed by Col. John Ford, National Field Secretary of the national social welfare organization, who said "it's vital that Santa is exemplary."

"We insist that our Sidewalk Santas not only are courteous, but live up to what children have been told by their parents," Ford said.

Kris Kringle has to be a model of diplomacy. One cardinal rule forbids the Santas from promising children they will get the gifts they ask for. But at the same time, Santa must send the youngsters away "hopeful and happy."

Other rules formulated by the Volunteers of America for its Santas cover the range from sweet breath to sweet disposition.

"Keep your breath clean ... avoid eating garlic or onions and do not eat, drink or smoke while on duty," is one of the basic commandments.

The Santas also are advised to be courteous and pleasant at all times, to avoid arguments or disputes and to avoid obstructing traffic.

Most of the Sidewalk Santas are older men. Some have themselves been rehabilitated by the Volunteers of America in the program supported by funds collected during the Christmas season. But the campaigns, which date back to 1901, play a much bigger role.

They provide free Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners to thousands of homeless individuals and needy families in cities across the nation and holiday baskets of food, fuel and toys to families.

The funds collected in the chimneys also help support the Volunteers' year-round social welfare program.

In Australia, snow falls in June and Christmas can be so hot that the bathing beaches are crowded.

The earth is at least three billion years old, according to some scientists.

Holiday Liquor Sales Seen High In W. Va.

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)— State Liquor Commissioner Clarence Elmore said Tuesday he expects West Virginia liquor stores will double or even triple a normal week's $700,000 dollar receipts during the upcoming holiday period.

Elmore said the commission feels holiday sales will run higher this year than in 1960. He said his estimate was based on what "appears to be a general increase in business during 1961."

Elmore has built up inventory to more than $5.68 million worth of stock on the whisky stores' shelves. Another 35,000 cases of beverages, worth more than $1 million, are expected to be stocked in the next few days.

Elmore said that, as in other years, the stores will offer a variety of items in special Christmas decanters, but the so-called "prewrap" packages have been dropped. They are regular bottles wrapped in holiday paper.

A special drive-in service window is scheduled to be opened at the South Bluefield store about Dec. 1, Elmore said.

Maple syrup annually brings in the most cash revenue of any woodland product to most dairy farmers in Vermont.

Range Rustlers Go Modern, Steal Gasoline

By HOYT GIMLIN

SANTA FE, N.M. (UPI)—The latest objective of range rustlers is gasoline rather than cattle, a bow to the machine age in the wide open spaces.

This thievery in northwest New Mexico has become so acute state revenue officials have assigned extra inspectors there to help try to stamp it out.

The pilfered product is "drip" gasoline which forms in natural gas pipelines from temperature changes. It is collected at intervals in storage tanks to keep the pipelines free. This gasoline, distilled by nature, is good enough to power cars and trucks.

In more populous areas these tanks can be guarded easily enough. But in northwest New Mexico, an oil and gas producing region partly on the vast Navaho Indian Reservation (itself as big as West Virginia), a thorough policing job is almost impossible.

Fred Moxey, executive director of the New Mexico Oil and Gas Association, said the industry estimates monthly losses as high as 7,000 barrels, enough to conclude an organized ring might be at work.

An Indian police officer was shot to death last summer because, according to an account pieced together later, he apparently caught a man taking gasoline from one of the tanks in a remote spot.

Gas companies padlock their tanks but find that it does little good. If the lock is big enough to resist a sledge hammer the thief sometimes pounds hard enough to damage valuable machinery. Or else, in disgust, he knocks a hole in the tank and lets the gasoline pour onto the ground, creating a fire hazard.

The patrolling job required is enormous. Some 4,000 miles of back roads, all far apart in rugged country, lead to the tanks.

But the federal and state losses in taxes and royalties could amount to $60,000 monthly on a looted 7,000 barrels. These figures are, however, labeled as guesses.

Centuries ago in Europe, gentlemen who were regular drinkers had personal drinking cups that they took to the tavern each night and to their graves when they died.

Barron Invites Citizens To Pre-Legislative Meet

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Gov. W. W. Barron's second annual non-partisan citizens' pre-legislative conference will be held here Dec. 15.

Barron said about 350 leaders from all walks of life in West Virginia have been invited to the one-day session. He held a similar meeting prior to the 1961 legislative session.

The governor said those attending will be presented with various subjects for discussion and recommendations to him for his legislative call.

The 30-day budget session opens Jan. 10. The legislators normally can consider only the 1962-63 budget and items included in the governor's call.

Con Hardman, the governor's press secretary, said the format of the conference will differ from last year's meeting in that all those attending will be assigned to committees to study the various subjects. Last year, those attending formed a big executive committee which in turn broke up into smaller subcommittees to make their studies and recommendations.

What Kind Of Toys Do The Kids Really Want For Christmas?

NEW YORK (UPI)—Children are the best judges of what to get children for Christmas.

That was the conclusion reached by Max Hess, president of a department store in Allentown, Pa.

So, for the past year, Hess's has been conducting a unique study to find the toys most enjoyed by youngsters in various age groups.

Four "toy juries," composed of children between the ages of 18 months and 12 years, were employed in the search for a way to overcome juvenile boredom with toys and give adults a better idea of what kind of toys are best for youngsters.

Chidren up to 18 months of age enjoy rattles, squeaky rubber or cuddly animals and dolls, toys that fasten to the side or across the crib. They like small, colorful blocks of rhymes, and jingles to read or sing to them. Small wagons, push-pull, roller or simple take-apart toys also are excellent choices.

Those between 18 months and three years of age love active physical play. They imitate grown-ups, work with their hands and have a great interest in sounds. So choose toys such as these: push-pull or pedal toys, trucks to straddle, wagon, wheelbarrow and small slide-swing-climb sets. To satisfy their musical tastes, there are tambourines, tom-toms, musical tops, horns, toy pianos and records.

Children between three and six are interested in words, numbers and creating. They enjoy a more dramatic form of imitative play and their growth requires bigger equipment. The Hess study group of youngsters suggested some good toys for this age group are: Indian or cowboy outfits; doctor's or nurse's kit; hand puppets; equipment for cooking, laundry, house-cleaning and store-keeping, and all kids of dolls and doll clothes. Also, blackboards, chalk, paints and clay, puzzles and story books. They also need larger tricycles, big, sturdy trucks and larger swings and slides.

In the six to nine year old group, children want things "true to life." Some good choices might be: mixers, irons, sewing machines, typewriters that really work; doll house and furniture in correct scale, workbench with good tools and wood; electric trains; chemical or printing outfits, word and number games. To accommodate their more vigorous play, select gym apparatus, athletic equipment, roller and ice skates, sleds, skis or a bicycle.

Nine to twelve year olds have an interest in hobbies and crafts. They like handicraft outfits; model kits; sets for study of soil, rocks and chemicals; magnets; telegraph sets, sound effect outfits and stamps. To provide them with a mental challenge, choose games based on history, geography, science and art; checkers, chess, cribbage, more intricate construction sets and train equipment. This group also has an urge to compete and perfect skills, so select dart games, or equipment for archery, target shooting, table tennis, basketball and handball.

Think You Can Follow Directions Well? Okay, Try This Teacher's Quickie Test

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI)—Can you follow directions?

Sure, you can. Or can you? As well as school children in the top 10 per cent of the 12-15 year-old age bracket?

William F. Waechter, 24, of Garden Grove, is a teacher at Will Rogers Junior High School here.

For three years he's been testing his pupils' ability to read and follow instructions with a simple fun-test he picked up while getting his bachelor of science degree at Ball State Teachers College, Muncie, Ind.

The 7th, 8th and 9th grade kids love it and here's your chance to try it. Just concentrate, but remember you have only three minutes to answer these questions:

1. Read everything before doing anything.
2. Put your name in the upper right hand corner of this paper.
3. Circle the word "name" in sentence two.
4. Draw five small squares in the upper left hand corner of this paper.
5. Put an "x" in each square.
6. Put a circle around each square.
7. Sign your name under the title.
8. After the title write "Yes, Yes, Yes."
9. Put a circle around each word in sentence No. 7.
10. Put an "x" in the lower left hand corner of this paper.
11. Draw a triangle around the "x" you just put down.
12. On the reverse side of this paper multiply 703 by 9805.
13. Draw a rectangle around the word "paper" in sentence No. 4.
14. Call out your first name when you get to this point in the test.
15. If you think you have followed directions up to this point call out, "I have."
16. On the reverse side of this paper add 8950 and 9850.
17. Put a circle around your answer. Put a square around the circle.
18. Count out loud in your normal speaking voice backwards from ten to one.
19. Now that you have finished reading carefully, do only sentences one and two.

How did you do in your three minutes? Not so hot? Waechter has given the test to approximately 600 students. About three out of 30 make perfect scores. And this was a shortened version of the 25 questions given the kids.

Waechter and his wife, Nancy, are both Hoosiers. He was born in South Bend and she in Fort Wayne. Since coming here, they've used the test as an ice-breaker at parties. He says adults do just about the same as kids.

"The students certainly enjoy a device of this nature," he says. "The test in itself is not an end — it's just a means of very vividly pointing out that directions are written to be followed.

"Students very often find themselves having difficulty with an assignment not because they can't do the work but because they haven't followed directions.

"And they haven't followed the directions because they didn't read them carefully enough to fully understand them."

Waechter is working for his master's degree at Long Beach State College. Yes, he follows directions. He says.

Federal Judge Named

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy Tuesday named Charles G. Neese, a former aide of Sen. Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn., as a U.S. district judge for eastern Tennessee.

Neese, a 45-year-old Nashville attorney, was given a recess appointment to the $22,500-a-year post.

Draws Crowd

TOKYO (UPI)—The visit of Britain's Princess Alexandra of Kent to one of Tokyo's major department stores ended in near chaos Tuesday when hundreds of Japanese shoppers, eager for a glimpse of the princess, pushed, shoved and screamed as Alexandra made her exit from the store. But the princess cooly drove away before the crowd stampeded. Police said there were no reports of injuries.

West Virginians To Eat Last Year's Turkeys

By CARLO J. SALZANO

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The State Agriculture Department reports that some turkeys which grace Thanksgiving dinner tables this year may have been frozen since about this time last year.

Department statistician Sam L. Guy said the turkeys are still on hand because growers overproduced in 1960. The result was a market decline that has seen West Virginia turkey prices drop from about 26 cents a pound last year to between 17 and 19 cents this year.

Guy said producers, anticipating another big turkey crop in 1962, are trying to head off an accompanying dip in prices by working on self-imposed production limits.

However, Guy said production cutbacks won't be reflected in the form of higher prices possibly until late next summer because of the big supply continuing into 1962.

The National Turkey Advisory Committee has proposed a program of controlling turkey production and the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture will hold hearings on the proposal in some large turkey-producing states later this month and in early December.

Guy said West Virginia turkey production this year is running about 3 per cent below the year-ago total of 923,000 head of light and heavy breeds. Production to date totals about 892,000 head.

But across the nation, growers raised nearly 107 million of the gobblers, up 26 per cent over 1960.

Because of the heavy supply, Guy said many turkeys which farmers are selling now will be frozen and placed in storage and some may not reach the dinner table before next Thanksgiving.

Vermont Hopes To Find New Industry For State

By ISABELLE MCCAIG

MONTPELIER, Vt. (UPI) — State officials are working to effect the difficult transition of Vermont from an agricultural economy, bolstered by tourism, to a thriving manufacturing complex.

Gov. F. Ray Keyser Jr., 33, resents any reference to the Green Mountain state being typified by pastoral scenes of cows and maple sugar-making houses.

Faced with high unemployment in the sparsely-populated state, the governor's program for 1961-63 is based on new industry. His chief lure is an Industrial Development Commission which will guarantee loans to new industry settling in Vermont.

Vermont is in the main stream of traffic from the west to the densely populated eastern seaboard but it has been bypassed. Keyser ha announced a new 12-year program for development of an arterial road system in connection with the new interstate highway along the New Hampshire border.

Sen. George Aiken (R-Vt.) is working in Washington for development of Lake Champlain to tie the bustling St. Lawrence Seaway to the Hudson River. Such a project would put Vermont in a position to benefit from east-west commercial traffic.

The 1961 legislature backed the governor's determination to enact no new taxes and no increases in present general taxes in the ensuing biennium, although Vermont will sped a record $107 millio in 1962-63.

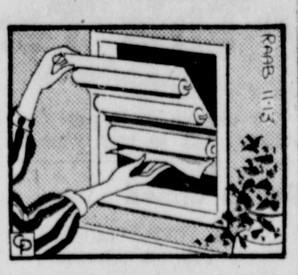

Among efforts to attract new industry and more people was Keyser's proposal to repeal the electrical generating tax. Although the tax will bring in an estimated $900,000 in revenue in the next two years, it has been a hindrance to new power development. The legislature approved repeal in 1965, instead of 1963, as Keyser wished, and only if the New England Power Co. chooses Vermont as the site of a proposed $100 million atomic power plant.

Labor is assuming a more strategic role in the state. At the 1959 session, a right-to-work bill was defeated. This year, attempts to introduce it never got off the session, a right-to-work bill was defeated. This year, attempts to introduce it never got off the ground.

Tourism, which accounts for about $120 million annually, is expanding rapidly largely in the ski areas.

Offers Medical Aid

MANILA (UPI)—The Philippine government offered Wednesday to send non-military aid to Communist-threatened South Viet Nam. Foreign Secretary Felixberto Serrano announced the offer following a meeting here with U.S. Ambassador John D. Hickerson. He said the government was considering dispatching medical teams to the Southeast Asian republic.

Fleming Asks Students, Others To Help Prevent Thanksgiving Day Tragedies

Police and Fire Commissioner Philmore Fleming, looking toward the traffic crush and celebrations incident to local Thanksgiving Day football games, said he hopes all students have fun — but cautioned them to observe safety regulations regarding both pedestrian and vehicular traffic.

"If the students want to have good, clean fun before and after the game, the Police Department will help them have it," he said.

But, he added, the department also wants an accident-free holiday and it will be the responsibility of the students and those attending the holiday events to see that this goal is achieved.

The commissioner was high in his praise of cooperation received in the past few years and said his statement yesterday was just a reminder.

He said that most incidents in the past were created by youngsters not attending any of the high schools or those who were out of school. He said if any student has trouble, he should report it to a policeman.

Fleming cautioned those students with cars who drive to school and will be using them at night after dances and parties to observe the traffic laws. Stay within the speed limit and observe yield right-of-way and stop signs, he said. He also urged that drivers refrain from overloading a car with passengers, which sometimes leads to a traffic mishap. Ninety per cent of bad accidents, Fleming said, are caused by failing to yield right-of-way or to observe stop signs.

A major danger point will be the "victory joy rides" in the evening after the game and Fleming urged students not to be overexuberant to the point where they endanger the lives of others as well as themselves.

Following today's game, Fleming asked students to bear with the department. The "victory march" downtown will be delayed until the heaviest of traffic has been moved out of the stadium area. That will allow parents and friends time to reach downtown to view the parade and to meet their youngsters when it is over, he said.

He also urged those going to the game to get an early start so a traffic tieup can be prevented.

As usual, police will be assigned to all traffic points as well as inside the stadium. It is hoped that those police called out on their days off or from vacation will be allowed to see part of the game by using a cruiser relay system and then return to their posts in time to handle the heavy traffic.

The reason the inside of the stadium is heavily patrolled is to protect the youngsters in case of an emergency, Fleming said, adding he would rather have the police on duty there taking care of one youngster than to have them downtown where perhaps half a dozen cars will be on the street during game time.

The commissioner expressed special thanks to the principals of the two schools, Victor D. Heisey of Fort Hill and Dr. W. Ardell Haines of Allegany, for their cooperation.

Registrar Speaks At PTA Meeting

William Smerling, registrar of Allegany Community College, addressed Johnson Heights School Parent-Teacher Association at its regular meeting.

Smerling discussed the community college and its meaning to the grade school parent. He conducted a question and answer period.

A flag ceremony was presented by Webelos Den, Cub Pack 16, with Edward Keiter, David Poland, Larry McCoy, Douglas Knoche and James Stafford taking part.

Miss Anetta Yates directed the Fort Hill Singing Group in several selections. William Rice was soloist and Jane Beery accompanied.

Attendance awards were won by Miss Margaret Ingles' room. Mrs. Pearl Mello's room was second.

Smoking On Increase

OTTAWA (UPI)—Canadians are smoking more cigarettes and cigars this year than last. The Bureau of Statistics reported Wednesday that cigarette consumption, increased 7.9 per cent in the first nine months of the year and cigar sales were up 2.6 per cent.

New A-Arms Ready To Test

CHICAGO (AP) — Dr. Glenn Seaborg, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, says the United States has several nuclear weapons that are ready but never have been tested.

They cannot be checked out, he says, except by testing them in the air.

His comments, taped in advance for a television program, were made public Tuesday by the sponsor, Northwestern University.

The university's Digest related that Seaborg said President Kennedy must weigh the chances of a future war—perhaps greater if this country doesn't resume atmospheric tests—against future genetics effects, which will be greater if the United States does renew air tests.

The Soviet Union broke a ban with a series of atmospheric tests. The United States recently resumed underground tests.

While the United States may be ahead in over-all nuclear capability, Seaborg said, Russia probably has made great strides as evidenced by its current tests.

Trading Date Set

LONDON (UPI)—Unilever Ltd., the trading empire which owns Lever Brothers in the United States, Wednesday announced that trading on the New York Stock Exchange in its shares and those of its Dutch "twin" Unilever NV is expected to begin Dec. 12.

The peach originally came from China where it has been a popular fruit for more than five thousand years.

GLENN ZEMBOWER

New Hardware Store To Open Here Tomorrow

A new business establishment, Zembower's American Hardware Store, corner of North Centre and Frederick streets, will have its grand opening Friday at 9 a. m.

Gifts will be given to all those who visit the store and in addition other prizes and a bicycle will be given away. The grand opening will continue through Saturday, December 2.

The new business venture has been started by Glenn Zembower, a Cumberland man who has been connected with various merchandising firms in Cleveland and Erie, Pa.

Zembower is a graduate of Allegany High School and following service during World War II in which he piloted a B-17 bomber, he entered Grove City (Pa.) College where he received a bachelor's degree. Later he obtained his master's degree from the University of Pittsburgh.

He joined the Halle Brothers department store in Cleveland and a few years later opened a branch of Halle's in Erie at one of the largest shopping centers in western Pennsylvania. For the last three years he has operated a hardware store in Erie.

Zembower has had workmen remodeling and installing equipment in the building, which formerly housed the Potomac Fruit Market. The exterior has been repainted and new lighting and fixtures installed.

Customers may serve themselves but assistance will be readily available to those who need it, Zembower said.

The store will stock general hardware items, electrical and plumbing supplies and a complete paint department is included. Tom Locklin, a representative of a paint firm, will be here for the opening to help customers with any questions concerning paints.

Zembower said that he has always wanted to return to his hometown and go into business.

Canal Work Begins Tuesday

Work on converting a section of the C&O Canal into an ice skating area will get under way next week, according to information received yesterday by City Engineer Charles R. Nuzum.

In a telephone conversation this morning, Edwin M. Dale, superintendent of the National Park Service, informed Nuzum that a crew will be here Tuesday to start construction o earthen dams at Offutt and Roberts streets, a distance of approximately 2,000 feet.

Dale said the work will start Tuesday, weather permitting, and that the project should be completed within two days. The project is a cooperative one between the Park Service, which administers the historic waterway, and the City Recreation Department.

The dams will have wooden gates, sections of which can be removed to control the heighth of the water, Nuzum said. As contemplated, the water depth will average between three and four feet, the city engineer explaining that with that much of an impoundment a 40-foot wide ice skating area will be provided along the some 2,000 feet between the dams.

Dale warned that the porosity of the ground will have to be tested after the dams are constructed, since in a number of other cases along the canal it was found the ground would not hold water sufficiently long to freeze.

Nuzum said this is unlikely since he has observed surface water remains in the canal following heavy rains. The city engineer also said the water placed in the dammed area will offer no danger of flooding adjacent streets, noting that a number of queries along that line have been made by residents.

The Park Service will furnish the men and material required for the construction project, Nuzum said, while the city will provide loading equipment and engineering services.

Nuzum also stated that the Park Service customarily puts in benches while doing such work, and that local interests provide "salamanders" for the warmth of skaters.

The city engineer said adequate heating devices can be made from oil drums at little or no cost.

Zimmer To Attend College Unit Sessions

Dr. Robert S. Zimmer, president of Allegany Community College, will be in Atlantic City Friday and Saturday to attend meetings of the Junior College Council of the Middle States Association.

Donald Loughrie, a parttime English instructor at the college, was in New York City yesterday attending a meeting of the committee that is formulating plans for the fourth annual conference of the American National Theatre and Academy.

The national organization, which will meet next spring in New York, promotes a closer relationship between the legitimate, educational and community theatres.

Four High Schools Hold Rallies And Bonfires On Eve Of Thanksgiving Games

Students and adherents of the high school teams which will play today in the annual Turkey Day football classics held pep rallies and bonfires yesterday and last night.

Allegany and Fort Hill teams will meet today at 1:30 p.m. at the stadium on Greenway Avenue while the LaSalle High team journeys to Frostburg where it will meet the Beall High team at 1:30 p. m.

Allegany High held an assembly and pep rally at noon in the gymnasium with Mrs. Lenore Auker, cheerleader advisor, in charge of the program.

After a series of cheers short talks were made by Dr. W. Ardell Haines, principal; Coach Ed Schwarz and his assistants, Ronnie Chapman and Carlton Shore. Co-captains Mike Harvey and Chuck Davis were introduced and spoke briefly.

The pep rally and assembly at noon at Fort Hill High School was conducted by Coach Bobby Cavanaugh in the gymnasium.

A number of selections were played by the band under the direction of Mosby Rogers. Short talks were given by Coaches Charles Lattimer, Dayden Dawson, Paul Flick, John Frank, Edward Dawson and Cavanaugh. Principal Victor D. Heisey also spoke.

Introduced were Cynthia Seihler, football queen, and her attendants, Betsey Cornwell, and Deloris Hiett.

Cheerleaders Carole Smith, Peggy Grove, Carole Corley, Pat McGann, Jane Welch and Judy Nee led a series of yells for the team.

The little Fort Hill band played and the cheerleaders led cheers for the players. Principal Heisey, Arnold Robertson, representing the South Cumberland Business and Civic Association; Paul Long, president of the Booster Club and Delbert Proudfoot, president of the Alumni Association, were on the program, with Raymond Hahne as master of ceremonies the coaches and the football queen.

Beall High School at Frostburg planned a "pigskin parade" at 7 p.m. from Beall's Lane to Main Street and thence to the school grounds where a bonfire and pep rally were scheduled

Dana Willetts, the football queen and her attendants, Christina Carrington, and Nancy Gaugan, were in the parade along with their escorts, Tom Rankin, Allan Eisel and James Wilson. The Tri-Hi-Y is sponsoring the queen's activities while the Hi-Y arranged the bonfire and band programs.

Frank Munson, band director, coordinated the events on the program.

Dr. Wayne Hill, principal, was to speak at the bonfire and rally along with Jerry Delaney and James Robertson, co-captains of the football team; Coach Gerard Calhoun and assistants Niles Chaney and Russell Fitzgerald. The cheerleaders headed up the rally with Sondra Green, captain. Cheerleaders are JoAnne Lewis, Patty Spates, Emily Hill, Susan Sleeman and Yvonne Montana.

The majorettes marching with the band were Saundra Fresh, Peggy Lewis, Barbara Walker, Roberta Rizer, Karen Carter, Carolyn Minnick, Sally Pape, Mary Frances Filer and Nancy Nelson.

Safety precautions at the bonfire were to be handled by the Frostburg Fire Department and the Police Department was to assist in patrolling the crowd.

A bonfire and pep rally were scheduled at 7 p.m. on the LaSalle High School practice field on Furnace Street extended with students and friends of the school attending.

Short talks by Jim Manges, coach, and his assistants, Fred Corbin and Dick Bittner; Brother Thomas, athletic director and Brother Kenneth and Brother Anthony, team moderators, were scheduled.

The newly-organized LaSalle High band and the cheerleaders from the various Catholic girls high schools took part in the pep rally.

Following the pep rally and bonfire a dance was held in the school auditorium. The Student Council arranged for the dance.

Scout Leaders View Activities

FROSTBURG — The Frostburg-Barton Neighborhood Girl Scout Leaders Association met at Barton with Edna Richardson presiding. A report was given on the handcraft workshop which was held recently. Mrs. Richardson also reported on her trip to the regional conference at Philadelphia.

In connection with the Birthday Blossom program, the neighborhood has two flower beds planted. One is at Barton in front of the I.O.O.F hall and one is on Route 40 on the bank at the eastern end of Frostburg. The bed is outlined in yellow rocks in shape of a trefoil and bulbs have been planted to bloom in the spring. Each troop will share in the care of the plot. Mrs. Marguerite Lashley is chairman of this project.

The host troop, Barton 63, served refreshments.

Whose Day Is Thanksgiving?

Thanksgiving is for those resolute souls who, in a world of woe, struggle against adverse circumstances and toil for the common weal. Realizing that life is a battle upstream, they are grateful for any gains made.

That was the original concept of Thanksgiving Day. It has never changed. Those whose lives are easy have little for which to be thankful. Existence is a series of contrasts, the good with the bad, and those who do not battle evil and adversity have no real knowledge of goodness and prosperity.

The Pilgrims were people who turned their backs upon a measurable security for the sake of conscience. They had homes in an old and ordered world but desired a strengthening of the soul through freedom of worship. For this they braved the rigors of a wilderness.

Their cause was just and they had the strength of a thousand men. For many years their material fortune was outrageous but they clung to their hard-won way of life. Their thanks welled up out of hearts filled with zeal for a cause.

What America needs today is faith in its way of life, gratitude for the great gains made and dedication to preservation of its heritage. Americans today have everything the Pilgrims could have wanted, and much besides.

Thanksgiving Day is for those who battle for justice and mercy and walk humbly with their God.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Thanksgiving Day 1961

Those who are too easily discouraged by the course of events, forget that they need to be thankful for life itself. Were there no Thanksgiving Day, we should still be grateful that we live in this era of futile destruction.

Man, in his limited wisdom, has now been able to prove that he can destroy what God has made, but he has not yet proved that he can make what God has made. It is possible now to destroy everything but we cannot make everything. We can destroy the Earth, but we cannot make the Earth. We can make a 50 Megaton Bomb and we know how to use it to smash what it has taken millennia to make, but we cannot produce the Earth itself. We have great knowledge and even wisdom but we know little of what we are doing.

And so we need to be thankful that our learning has not taught us to be so destructive that nothing is left of life. We have gone far in our ability to destroy; yet we have not been able really to destroy anything. We have gone far in discovering the secrets of science; yet the total result of our activities is hardly perceptible.

We must be thankful in this period of leaderless men who quarrel with each other for matters which are hardly meaningful, the most that can be said is that men battle against each other futilely but that in all their battles, they have hardly really destroyed anything that cannot be rebuilt. No achievement of man and no monument of God's creation has been destroyed during this period of man's inhumanity to man.

We need to be thankful that while Khrushchev acts like a madman, shouting, shrieking, threatening, cajoling, he does not take initiative in a fighting war. He shouts but he does not shoot. He terrorizes but he does not destroy. He stands before the walls of states blurting forth imprecations and threatening violence, but it all ends in noise and echoes. And when the threats have made him hoarse, others settle down to their daily tasks, wondering what he will do next but no longer fearing the consequences of his imprecations.

We are thankful that our own country has been able to go through this period of terror without losing our stability and without such misconduct as can only lead to self-destruction. In fact, we have come through the worst of it all, stronger than when we started, more able to meet crisis after crisis, more unified as a people.

We are thankful that we are achieving unity as a people. The elements of disunion are being eliminated from our society. The extremists of the Left and of the Right, those who live by hate and prejudice or treason, are being found and scourged and the nation grows stronger through unity of ideals. It is wholesome that extremism should be extirpated.

We are thankful that we recognize the weakness of our institutions and that we seek means to correct our errors and to build a stronger society based on the ideals of our ancestries. We do not suffer from stiff-neckedness and false pride.

We are thankful that we have gone through a period of fear and distress and have come out of it courageous and more sure of ourselves, daring greatly to build a stronger society based upon historic memory and not upon the hearsay of the moment. Political opportunism is giving way to noble ideals.

We are thankful that in this era of revolution and disturbance we have succeeded in achieving a political change quietly and peacefully and that we have continued our orderly way of government.

We are grateful that we have overcome our own prejudices which make for weaknesses, that we have reached a moment in our history when religious distinctions have not continued discriminations among citizens, so that all are equal in the eyes of their neighbors as they are in the eyes of their God.

And so, we are thankful to the God of our Fathers that while in other lands, meanness of spirit, confusion of ideals and judgement continues, in our country, we are achieving understanding and human affection, that to us is coming the evidence of the brotherhood of man in all its reality.

What About These Extremists, Mr. President?

Soviet Bloc Enters Second Era Of Khrushchev

By Joseph Alsop

BELGRADE

The Communist part of the world has now entered another period of great changes, and perhaps of great convulsions. By his brutal posthumous trial of Stalin, Nikita S. Khrushchev himself ended the era of relative internal tranquility that began with his own achievement of unique power.

These conclusions appear irresistible from the special vantage point of Belgrade. But the second stage of de-Stalinization is exactly like the first stage in at least one bothersome respect.

You can be almost dead sure that all sorts of remarkable things, and possibly some very violent things, are going to happen. But you cannot pinpoint what these things will be, any more than you could have predicted the Hungarian revolt and massacre, the crisis in Poland, and the fall of Malenkov, Molotov, Kaganovich, and Bulganin, after Khrushchev's secret speech denouncing Stalin in 1956.

China and Albania are the most obvious places to look for convulsions. The Albanian dictator, Enver Hoxha, after warning his people they may have to "eat grass," has just sent a mission to China to plead for something more nourishing. But China herself has been in the grip of creeping famine for at least three years, to the point of being driven to expend her last bullion reserves on food imports. Hoxha may get some aid, but hardly enough to keep his unhappy victims off the predicted herbal diet.

The case of China is even more interesting. With the inauguration of the agricultural communes, sacrifices without historical precedent began to be demanded of the Chinese peasantry in order to pay for forced industrialization. Creeping famine, combined with marked industrial progress, was the first result.

But now something very like a generalized industrial breakdown seems to have been added to the creeping famine. Factory stoppages all over China are reported, mainly because of electric power shortages, caused by coal shortage, reportedly caused in turn by the famished condition of the coalminers. In addition, if Khrushchev's posthumous trial of Stalin was also intended as an indirect trial of Mao Tse-tung, as seems to be the case, the Chinese Communist party may at last be entering the stage of blood purges.

The Chinese party and Chinese army are unlike the Russian party and army in Stalin's day, in that they are almost co-terminous. If there are purges in China, the army will feel the effect at once. Hence the conditions seem to be coming into being in which the mighty police states of China's past were brought down by sudden, unplanned popular explosions. If the army remains dependable, Mao can wade through the river of blood. But if the army joins the people, Mao is likely to be swept away.

No one can say how Khrushchev views this possibility. One can say he must consider that the possibility exists, if his fearful new indictment of Stalin was in fact intended to indict Mao Tse-tung as well.

One can also be quite certain that Khrushchev views with utmost indignation the first solid result of the great drama in Moscow. Far too little attention has been paid to the fact that the Communist parties of North Korea, North Vietnam, Burma, Australia, and some other countries have supported Albania and China against Khrushchev. Something like the schism between the Eastern Greek Orthodox and Western Roman Catholic churches may thus have begun—unless the Chinese power center is subsequently eliminated.

But that is not the end of the story, by any means. For example, the Soviet leadership is now divided into a small minority, including Khrushchev himself, and a large majority of very different character.

The minority are divided from the majority in a series of important ways. Khrushchev, Mikoyan, Suslov, and the one or two other survivors of the pre-war generation, are first of all much older than the other members of the reorganized Presidium and Party Secretariat. Secondly, in greater or less degree, and in very great degree in Khrushchev's case, they all share in Stalin's blood guilt, while the others do not. And thirdly, none of them received engineering or other technical training, while all the new men started their careers in this way. In Russia, this last is also a great gap.

The new generation of leaders, being Khrushchev's proteges, may well remain loyal to their patron, although there is always the off-chance that they will not. But even if Khrushchev holds power until his death, the changed composition of the leadership is almost bound to be reflected in still bolder internal changes in the Soviet Union.

Add the potentially volcanic effects on the Russian people, and on the Russian students and intellectuals particularly, of the appalling revelations which have now been placed on the official record. Add the further effects of the new stage of de-Stalinzation on the party apparatus in the Eastern European satellites, where Ulbricht of East Germany and Novotny of Czechoslovakia, to name only two key figures, are both notorious Stalinists, until recently unrepentant.

The sum suggests why great changes and perhaps great convulsions are now to be expected in the Soviet bloc. Unfortunately, however, there is nothing at all to suggest that this prospect inside the Soviet bloc will ease the problems of the Western policy makers at Berlin, in South Vietnam, or elsewhere.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

PROPAGANDA — The United States Information Agency reports that its English language instruction program is extremely popular around the world, particularly in Africa. It seems that African leaders, as well as the rank and file, want to learn English.

The Russians became concerned with this trend, not about the language being taught, but because they feared the ideas and ideologies that might be planted in the African mind in the process.

To the Russians, there was only one answer. They now offer an English language course of their own to African nationals, and, incidentally, plant their own propaganda seeds in the books used for instruction.

BUREAUCRACY — The federal government must plan for the worst. And a part of this extreme planning is how to keep government functioning in the event of an atomic attack on Washington.

To meet this end, the entire top echelon of Washington has been given secret instructions as to where to report outside of Washington in the event of an attack. But at least one official has let his superiors know he will not obey the order.

He has no intention, he says, of abandoning his wife and children in the event of attack, and, he points out, the order specifically prohibits him from taking his family with him.

Be Thankful For Physical, Mental Health

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Medical progress is providing many blessings for which we can be thankful. It is a wonderful feeling to be healthy and physically fit and able to work and play at peak efficiency. What better endorsement can be given for this very special product — health?

Medical care has become so popular we've run short of equipment and manpower. We need more hospitals, beds, operating rooms, clinics, nursing homes, physicians, nurses, and technicians — even though we have more hospitals and medical personnel than any other country in the world. In other words, we have oversold ourselves on the importance of good health.

The need for psychiatric care is a special example. Ror several years, the value of mental hygiene has been stressed in newspapers, magazines, and over the air. People have been told to get rid of their fears, frustrations, and other emotional disturbances with the aid of competent advisers and tranquilizers. The results sound so good, everyone is demanding happiness.

Mental illness is better understood today and the necessity for early institutional care is more appreciated than in previous centuries. The stigma of schizophrenia is disappearing rapidly because of changes in attitude toward mental illness.

Supply and demand enter the picture when the individual tries to get the help he thinks he needs. There are not enough psychiatrists or mental institutions to meet the demand. This means delays in getting appointments, hurried visits, less attention to details, and higher costs. The experience creates dissatisfaction with a service that is superior to any in the world.

Life is a very special merchandise — more precious than gold or diamonds. Let's hope the demand for health will continue and that the medical profession will be able to meet the demand without skimping on the physician-patient relationship that Americans treasure.

NO STUNTERS

Mrs. H. H. writes: Please list foods, medicines, and other substances that should be avoided that might stunt a child's growth. My child is small and I want her to have every chance to grow.

REPLY

A well balanced diet is the best stimulant to normal growth. There are no foods, medicines, or other substances (including tobacco) that will stunt growth.

NOVOCAINE

A. G. writes: Why is it that when the dentist injects novocaine, my face swells and remains puffy for days? None of my friends have this effect from the shot.

REPLY

The explanation of this puffiness may be allergy to the anesthetic or hemorrhage under the skin.

VITAMIN INTAKE

R. T. writes: How can you find out what vitamins are in what foods?

REPLY

The normal balanced diet will provide adequate vitamins. If you want specific sources, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on vitamins in food.

FERTILITY TESTS

L. J. writes: Is it possible to make tests to determine whether a single woman is fertile?

REPLY

Yes, by employing the same tests used on married women, with one obvious exception.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

"I've got a skunk in my cellar," wailed a housewife over the phone to the police. The officer receiving the call assured her, "Nothing to get excited about. Just make a trail of breadcrumbs from the basement to the yard and wait for the skunk to follow it outside."

An hour later, the housewife was back on the phone, more frantic than ever. "I did what you told me," she announced. "Now I've got TWO skunks in my cellar!"

A young mother looked into the nursery and found her 6-year-old son laboriously putting a bandage on his thumb. "What happened?" cried the mother. "I hit it with a hammer," said the boy.

"You poor darling," sympathized ma. "I wonder why I didn't hear you cry." "What was the use of crying?" explained the boy. "I thought you were out."

Arlene Francis decided to study French cooking recently, and enrolled with a very famous Parisian chef.

"Does he let you eat what you cook?" asked her friend, Joan Axelrod.

"Let us?" laughed Arlene. "He MAKES us."

Killer Whales Have Counterparts In Underminers Of JFK And Warren

By Drew Pearson

Los Angeles
Nov. 20, 1961

Dear Joe:

Yesterday we went out to Marineland with your brother Georgie and saw Bubbles the whale.

I remember taking you there two years ago when Bubbles was much smaller. She has grown now and weighs 1,700 pounds. She also has a boy friend named Bimbo who is much bigger than she is and weighs 3,400 pounds but is not as smart as Bubbles. That's because Bimbo has been in Marineland a shorter time than Bubbles, not because girls are any smarter than boys. You can point that out to your sister if she says the opposite.

Bubbles and her boy friend Bimbo have a funny way of kissing. They get off at opposite ends of the pool and swim at each other full speed and bounce their heads together. If you did anything like this with your brothers you would be knocked out, but whales have big pots of fat in their noses. So it doesn't hurt them.

The trainer let us pat Bubbles on her nose. It felt just like a rubber tire. She also reached out with her fin to shake hands and Georgie gave her a couple of shakes. She seems to like shaking hands just as much as someone running for Congress.

Captive Killer Whale

Marineland recently caught a killer whale, the first one ever captured. Killer whales are much smaller than ordinary whales and run in packs so they can gang up on the big blubber whales and kill them. Whales are very smart. A killer whale will get over the spout of a big whale so it can't come up for air and breathe. Then the other killer whales will attack the big whale and tear out its tongue. This is the tenderest part of the whale and the killer whales like to eat it. This also prevents the big whale from swallowing its food and eventually it dies.

This killer whale, the only one in captivity, is now in the big aquarium at Marineland with a lot of interesting fish and you may remember that the last time we were out here a diver went down and fed the fish. Now the diver can't go down because the killer whale might chew him up. So the fish have to be fed by throwing food on top of the water.

Seeing Bubbles reminded me of Chief Juctice Earl Warren of the Supreme Court who told me a lot about whales when I was with him in Norway last summer. His father was born in Norway which long has been the center of the whaling industry. The Chief Justice also used to be Governor of California where he often visited Marineland.

He told me that once Bubbles swallowed an inner tube and got quite sick. She thought it was a fish, but it wasn't and she couldn't digest the tire nor could she spit it out.

As you can imagine, it's very hard to take care of a sick whale. You can't put her to bed. You can't very well take her temperature. And you can't feel her wrist to get her pulse. And although Bubbles is a smart whale, she hasn't learned yet to stick out her tongue.

So Bubbles got sicker and sicker. Finally Governor Warren arranged for a special doctor to fly to California. He gave Bubbles a couple of gallons of castor oil and she got rid of the inner tube and got well.

The other night I went to hear President Kennedy speak. When I came out, there were several thousand people standing around the hall with placards calling President Kennedy names. This is what is called picketing. It is an American right to picket and to protest, and these pickets were protesting some of the things President Kennedy was saying about the Americans who don't seem to have confidence in their country and are preaching hate.

Your Uncle Joe Patterson for whom you are named and who used to be editor of the Chicago Tribune, was a forthright battler for the right to protest and picket, and he was also a battler against those who preach hate.

These preachers of hate have been ganging up on Chief Justice Warren in the same way that killer whales gang up on big whales. They are ganging up on him because he has the courage to stand up for the underdog in the United States and is calling the shots as he sees them even though his opinions may be unpopular. So some of the killer whales among people want to get rid of him.

Some of these same human killer whales also want to undermine President Kennedy, because he too has courage.

I'm not sure you'll understand all these things now, but you will when you get a little older. And you can ask your mother to explain what's been happening in France where you are now. France has been a great birthplace of Democracy but recently the French Army has been doing what no army has a right to do—trying to upset an elected government.

For the first time in many, many years in this country some American Army officers have been working behind the backs of their own commander-in-chief. They too are like killer whales. There aren't many of them yet, but there could be if the people of this country who are older than you and old enough to be alert don't wake up to the facts.

Give my love to your sister and your mother.

Rift In Cuba

By John Crosby

The great fissure in Communist ranks between Red China and the Soviet Union may very well have invated and split the high brass in the Cuban revolution too. There are some indications that Fidel Castro and Che Guevara, his Communist mentor and brain, have split sharply — Fidel following the Soviet line, Guevara, the tougher Red Chinese line.

Guevara, the charm boy of the Cuban revolution and the fellow who led Fidel into the Communist camp, is apparently being downgraded in the Cuban hierarchy. He is not prominently mentioned in Fidel's recent speeches at all and when he is, he is only referred to as being in charge of Cuban industry, not of the whole Cuban economy. Guevera himself has been quite critical of the Cuban economy, which is getting into increasingly desperate shape. Since Guevera is supposed to be in charge of the very economy whose shortcomings he is criticizing, this is a little like Mayor Wagner running against his own record. However, there's some doubt about whether you can get away with this quite as readily in a Communist dictatorship as under a democracy.

Ideologically, Guevera heads a group of Cuban revolutionaries who feel a greater empathy towards Red Chinese revolutionaries than towards the Soviet variety for a number of reasons. For one, they're the same age. The Soviets are an older, stuffier crowd. For another, their bellicosity is about on the same level, which is to say much higher than Russia's. For still another, Red China and Cuba share many of the same agricultural problems and an equal inability to handle them.

Castro has sided wtih the Soviet crowd, which is putting a higher priority on industrialization than on agriculture. In any case, the Russian crowd is very much in the saddle. The old line Cominform boys are running the show, headed by Blas Roca, secretary general of the Cuban Communist party and Dr. Carlos Rafael Rodriguez, editor of "Hoy," the Communist paper in Havana.

In fact, there is some indication that Castro himself is being downgraded (lovely Communist word) in this professionalization of the Cuban revolution. For some time, Castro was the Cuban revolution. Without him, the revolution would have gone out the window. Not any more. Even without Castro now — for whatever reasons — it would be difficult to reverse the tide or unseat the professionals who are running things.

Chief among these is Blas Roca. Roca went to the 22nd Party Congress in Moscow along with the President of Cuba, Osvaldo Dorticos, but it is significant that Khrushchev saw Blas Roca twice before he saw the President of Cuba. During the great parade, which is the biggest ceremonial event of the Congress, Roca was in the reviewing stand only a few feet away from Khrushchev while the President of Cuba was just part of the audience.

Castro has some other more personal reasons for pushing Che Guevera into the background. Guevera is the only other revolutionary in Cuba besides Castro with a popular following, with a limelight of his own. The most dedicated Marxist in Cuba, Guevera isn't even a Cuban and some of his ideas a little extreme for the Cubans and even for the Kremlin. Guevera was behind such quaint un-Cuban ideas as taking the children away from their parents in the communes, for invading Brazil with Cuban revolutionaries, and other harebrained ideas which have cost Cuba considerable prestige in South America. Guevera is a great admirer of Mao Tse-tung and his ideas, which are very much out in Cuba right now.

The competition between the Red Chinese variety and the Kremlin variety of Communism extends all the way through South America in varying degrees of intensity. The Red Chinese are bringing quite large numbers of both Chinese students and Chinese faculty members into Latin America, all of whom have been fully indoctrinated in China. The Kremlin is retaliating by sending in Russians, Czech, and Polish students.

The spread of Communism in South America is, of course, always a threat, but the divisiveness between Red Chinese Communism and the Kremlin brand may eventually prove quite useful to our side.

But, in a broad sense, we are going to have to rearrange our thinking about traditional friendship and traditional hostilities. For while the Russians and the Chinese grow increasingly competitive toward one another in Asia, South America, and Africa, the United States is threatened with increasing and formidable competition with its own allies in the Common Market. The two great power blocs once united in hostility towards the other one are now splitting into two wings fighting or — if that's too strong a word — contending with each other.

Army Officer To Speak At River Meeting

Chief spokesman for the Corps of Engineers at a public meeting here November 29 concerning the proposals for development of the Potomac River Basin will be Col. Warren R. Johnson, district engineer of the Baltimore Army Engineer District.

The meeting, one of seven planned in leading communities in the Potomac Basin, will be held at 7:30 p. m. in the auditorium of Allegany Community College. It will be sponsored by the Upper Potomac Industrial Development Company.

Col. Johnson, a 48-year-old native of Pecatonica, Ill., has had a varied and colorful Army career. He was commissioned in the Army Reserve in 1938 and entered active duty in 1941 as a first lieutenant. During World War II, he participated in the Northern France, Rhineland and Central Europe campaigns as commanding officer of the 286th Engineer Combat Battalion, attaining the rank of lieutenant colonel. He was commissioned in the regular Army in 1947.

In 1946 and 1947, Col. Johnson served as assistant professor of military science and tactics at the State College of Washington. Then reassigned overseas, from 1947 to 1950, he was commanding officer of several engineer battalions with Army forces in Korea and Japan. He was engineer staff officer for the Korean Military

After returning to the United States, Col. Johnson attended the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., for a year. His next assignment took him for a year to Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., where he became assistant chief of staff for personnel with the Sixth Armored Division.

For the next three years, Col. Johnson was assigned to Europe as area engineer, Joint Construction Agency, and then returned to Norfolk, Va., where he attended the Armed Forces Staff College. In 1956, he joined the North Atlantic Division of the Corps of Engineers in New York City and served as executive officer and assistant division engineer for civil works. In July 1959 he was assigned to Fort Benning, Ga., as commanding officer, 151st Engineer Group.

He assumed his present duties in Baltimore on July 30, 1960. As Baltimore district engineer, Col. Johnson has primary responsibility for a number of Federal activities in Delaware, Maryland, New York, Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia and the District of Columbia.

Col. Johnson is supervisor of Baltimore harbor; administers government contracts for major construction projects at Army and Air Force bases; investigates and recommends the need for new or improved navigation facilities in the Baltimore harbor, most of Chesapeake Bay and the Atlantic coast; supervises federal studies for the development of water resources in the Patuxent, Potomac and Susquehanna River basins and he acts as coordinator for specific emergency plans and operations during disasters that occur within his district's boundaries.

Col. Johnson, his wife and two daughters live in Towson. A 1939 graduate of the University of Illinois, he served before World War II on the engineering staff of the E. I. DuPont Company in Perth Amboy, N. J.

TV Notes

NEW YORK (UPI)—Funny experiences of two young men undergoing training to be astronauts will make up a projected TV film series planned by Screen Gems. Appropriately, the series is to be called "Astronauts." The show is aimed for the 1962-63 season. Sounds like just a slight switch on the durable "service comedy" type of entertainment.

CBS is going to spend $14.5 million over the next two years to turn its production center on the West Side into a more useful plant with six TV and five radio studios. The huge structure has housed only CBS offices and rehearsal space.

Nov. 29 will bring a rare television appearance by movie star Sophia Loren, who will play in sketches and sing on Steve Allen's 7:30 p.m. show on the ABC network.

Having established his "Write Me a Murder," production as a Broadway stage hit, George Schaefer, the man who puts together TV's "Hallmark Hall of Fame" shows, has gone to Hollywood to direct a television play for the "Alcoa Premier" series on ABC. The story is "The Hour of the Bath," with modern Vietnam as the background.

Build Coal Plant

NEW YORK (UPI) — Roberts & Schaefer Co., a division of Thompson-Starreet Co., Wednesday announced receipt of a $7,820,000 contract from Hindustan Steel Ltd., an agency of the Indian government, for construction and equipment for a coal preparation plant in India.

WANTS CHANGE

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Actor-producer Paul Henreid has been assured he will not have to play the romantically suave role that made him famous in MGM's "Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse."

He said he wouldn't take a part without the stipulation that he'd play a different type of role. "You know this type well," he said, "fascinating, debonair and utterly charming — the kind of people I simply can't stand anymore."

Aging Unit Plans List Of Available County Services

A brochure of services available in Allegany County to persons over 60 years of age will be prepared by the Allegany County Commission on the Problems of the Aging.

Mrs. Jennie Grahame and Rabbi Max Selinger, members of the board, were appointed to prepare the brochure at the commission's meeting, held in the County Commissioner meeting room at the Court House. Rev. Robert Current presided.

Four members who attended a meeting of the State Commission on the Aging, gave their reports. They outlined ideas that could be practical in Allegany County and reported that Enoch Pratt Library has films which will be made available to the local unit through the local library. The films would be shown at meetings of the commission.

Vets Should File Claims Without Delay

Prompt, business-like attention to VA matters is just as important to the veteran as the same attention would be in any matter, Sam Weston, officer in charge of the local Veterans Administration office, said yesterday.

Mr. Weston said quite often veterans put off attending to VA matters until the delay itself damages their position.

Some veterans feel that as long as they are still able to work they should not file claims for the disabilities they received in service, preferring instead to wait until their disability seriously hinders their work. The fault in this position lies in the veteran's assumption that he can easily establish service connection any time he applies, even years after discharge. This is not always true: usually the longer the veteran waits, the more difficult it becomes. Sometimes long delay combines with other unforeseeable circumstances to cause denial of the claim.

To warrant payment of compensation the veteran must show that the disease or injury suffered in service has left a continuing disability. If the claim is filed some time after discharge, medical evidence is required to show this continuity. The longer the veteran waits to file the claim, the more the evidence required to show continuity.

With the passage of years, people forget names, dates and addresses; doctors move or die, and the vital evidence they can give becomes unavailable. Veterans themselves may suffer additional disease or injury which will make the origin of the disability hard to determine. Without necessary evidence, the claim must be denied.

Any veteran who does not need compensation may renounce any amount payable for a service-inflicted or aggravated disability. He has only to make that request of VA. In this case the service connection itself remains and the veteran is protected, in that if later the veteran's situation or thinking changes he may ask for a re-rating.

Prompt attention is important not only in claims matters but also in any other VA matter. For instance, as conditions change, the veteran should make sure his GI insurance is kept abreast of the change. Failure to notify VA promptly of a change in beneficiary may result in part of the insurance proceeds being used for legal fees to set up and administer an estate, or worse, cause payment not in the best interests of his dependents.

There are also beginning and ending dates for GI schooling, set by law, which are important to the veteran interested in school or training.

Explanation or assistance on any VA problem is available to veterans at the local VA office, located in Room 308, Post Office Building.

Masonic Degrees To Be Conferred

Cumberland Council of Scottish Rite Masons will confer the 20th degree on a class of candidates Saturday at 4:30 p.m. at the Masonic Temple on Greene Street with Thomas E. Gilchrist presiding.

Following this degree, the 21st degree will be conferred at 5:15 p.m. by Ivan Hall. Dinner then will be served at 6:30 p.m. for all candidates and members of the degree team.

At 8:30 p.m., the 30th degree will be conferred by Jean N. Bourckel, Julius E. Schindler, Clifton D. Jeffries and Arthur B. Gibson.

Midland Warns Petty Thieves

Charles McGowan, baliff of the town of Midland, has notified the town council that there have been complaints recently of hub caps and other accessories being stolen from parked cars.

He specifically mentioned that hub caps were stolen from cars owned by Harry Jenkins and Phyllis Harclerode while the owners were attending services at Midland Methodist Church.

Mayor Lionel D. Baker noted that this is the first theft of this kind reported to the council in the past five years, and warned that anyone arrested for stealing in Midland will be prosecuted.

Council instructed the bailiff to patrol the parking lots at Midland Methodist and St. Joseph's Catholic Churches when cars are parked there.

Nearby Preston

left is a register which includes the names of persons from many states and walks of life.

Souvenior postcards and religious articles on sale at the church provide funds used to maintain the building and keep the flowers blooming in a nearby garden which borders the small evergreen forest.

Closes After Christmas

Mr. Milkint, who for years operated a garage in Thomas in partnership with his brother, is now semi-retired and is engaged in the nursery business.

In 1898 when he was six years old Mr. Milkint came to this country from Lithuania with his parents, who settled in Thomas.

He said the busy tourist season is about ended for another year and the church will be closed after Christmas until about April 1 next year.

When asked about Alaska and Hawaii, the 49th and 50th states, Mrs. Milkint said she feels confident the church is the "smallest in all 50 states."

W&L Alumni Meet

The Upper Potomac Chapter of the Washington and Lee University Alumni Association will have its fall meeting at 12:30 p. m. Saturday at the Fort Cumberland Hotel, according to Thomas N. Berry, chapter president.

OUR PILGRIM FATHERS GAVE

Thanks

FOR SO LITTLE

We Have So Much To Be Thankful For

Let us pause on this day, as our Pilgrim forefathers did so long ago . . . to give prayerful thanks, not only for the food on our table, but more importantly, for those freedoms we hold so dear, freedoms our forefathers sought and won in the new land, America. Our country has come a long, hard way since the day of that first meager harvest in 1621 . . . to truly become the "Land of Plenty" and the "Home of the Free." Let us pray it will always be!

Gifts For Those Who 'Have Everything' Will Be Plentiful Again This Year

By CLAIRE COX

NEW YORK (UPI) — This is going to be a bumper Christmas for the person who has everything, especially friends and relatives with plenty of money.

In other words, you need look no further for an appropriate gift for the couple you gave the "His" and "Hers" airplanes last Christmas.

For the lady of this luxuriating household, nothing would be more suitable than a Canadian white ermine bathrobe lined in pink taffeta, priced at $6,975 F.O.B. Nieman-Marcus in Dallas. For an additional $13.10, one may purchase a towel set to match the lining of the robe. And for $5.95 more a pink bath mat is available.

The husband need not want for something equally lavish. For him, you can purchase a "wall of wine," consisting of wine racks covering an entire wall and bottles of rare wine for each slot. This gift can cost up to about $5,000, depending on the size of the wall.

There is no limit to what one may spend on winning friends and influencing relatives. A New York jeweler is carrying a hand-tooled, 18-karat gold eyebrow pencil studded with diamonds and emeralds. Price: $12,500, including federal tax.

The same thing without jewels is available for $1.75.

A small oxygen tank and dispenser in an attache case costing $75 is recommended for use in home or office, on trips, for medical emergencies or beside the swimming pool.

A less expensive gift for a woman with a sense of humor is a gold house fly with white gold wings and red enamel eyes. The jeweler displaying this costly insect reported that one of his customers wears her fly-pin on the back of her dress at parties.

This costs $20.

The child who has everything is included in the catalogue of expensive Christmas presents, too. There is, for example, a seven-room doll house, $125 unfurnished and $213 completely equipped with period furniture. A variation of a tricycle is provided in the form of a sulky-cycle, consisting of a toy pony and cart that is propelled by regular bicycle pedals and steered with the reins. The price tag is $125. A hundred dollars will buy a small model of Fort Apache for a roomy backyard. The fort is six feet square and 64 inches high and is equipped with ladder and pill-boxes.

There also are adult gewgaws such as a $15,000 diamond bracelet, a Tiffany sterling silver bar set consisting of cube-sized ice tongs and ice pick for $15, including tax, and a special brush for cashmere sweaters for $6.75, not including tax. A compact traveler's fishing kit is available for $105, while a battery-operated peppermill and three flashlight batteries carries the low price of $5.95.

Many other unusual, but not necessarily very expensive, items are available for the everything-havers. Automobile seat belts are recommended at $10.95 each. An electric carving set costs $19.95. For the man who is on a diet there is a "made to measure" belt of black calf, lined with a tape measure ($8.50).

Tips On De-Icing Steps, Walks With Rock Salt

CHICAGO (UPI) — Here are some tips from the Salt Institute on how to use salt most effectively to de-ice steps, walks and driveways.

If possible, spread salt as soon as the first snow flakes begin falling. Use about one-fourth pound of salt per square yard of surface, sprinkling about one handful per square of sidewalk.

In a light snowfall, this may eliminate the need for shoveling; in heavier snow, the brine prevents the snow from bonding to walk or drive.

Spread a second application of salt during heavy snowfalls after the snow reaches a depth of two or three inches.

Before shoveling, wait until the salt has honeycombed the snow and the brine has spread out between snow and pavement. This permits the shovel to glide under the snow.

After walks and drives are shoveled, spread another light coat of salt to prevent an icy glaze from forming when the temperature drops.

Keep a bag of salt in the trunk of the car; a few handfuls applied at the rear wheels for traction can be a time and chill saver when stuck on slippery ice.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Give One Special Word—For Thanksgiving

There are so many big reasons for Thanksgiving, the little gifts sometimes get lost. Yet it may be the smallest blessings of all that endear us to life—and to people. We shouldn't forget them nor take them for granted.

This Thanksgiving Day, honor each person you love with one sincere compliment. (Make that two, for members of your own family!) This is the sweetest, most thoughtful gift you can give—to remind someone that he is beloved for a very special reason. Reminding him, you remind yourself, too. And both of you can share the gladness of having one another to know and to love.

You shouldn't have to search far for that one special word you can say. Lovable qualities are always near, sometimes too close to be recognized . . . until you take a step backward in your imagination. Just for a moment, close your ears. . . shut your eyes. . . lock your heart. . . and try to imagine what Thanksgiving Day would be like without a certain uncle's hearty laugh. . . a warmhearted mother's helping hand. . . a cheerful child's spontaneous delight in the excitement of a family reunion.

Each place at your Thanksgiving table brings a particular talent to make that table complete. Dad will say the prayer "because he has such a strong, warm, expressive voice." The food will draw raves for every cook who contributed a spoonful of advice. . . from Cousin's "way with gravy" Grandma's perfectly magical scheme to season stuffing.

If some look especially nice, tell it to them. If the children get caught in a spurt of good behavior, appreciate it—out loud! Show your love, SPEAK your love . . . don't save it for the emptiness of an epitaph!

The simplest excuse can be enough for a compliment. It's enough that every human being can find the words to carry love and gratitude, whatever they may say in reality.

If your words will give someone an extra "lift" this Thanksgiving Day, you can give extra thanks for the opportunity and the inspiration that gives them voice.

West Virginia Collects $296.42 Million

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—A new report compiled by State Auditor Denzil Gainer shows West Virginia collected $296.42 million during the 1960-61 fiscal year, including $116.75 million put in the general fund.

Gainer said the remainder of the state's "dollar" included $86.06 million in federal funds, $69.28 million in the state road fund, $17.09 million in special revenue funds and $7.21 million in the general school fund.

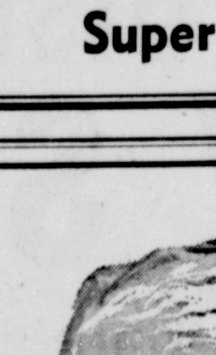

Gainer said that of the amount collected, the state spent more than 34 per cent of it, or $95.92 million, for highways. He said $93.06 million went for education, $58.98 million for health and welfare, and $31 million for other governmental costs, bonded indebtedness and capital outlays.

Hog marketings early in 1962 likely will be about 6 per cent larger than in the same period this year.

Trinidad Provides Unusual Treat For Travelers At Spring Carnival Time

By RALPH VILLERS
United Press International

Christmas isn't even here yet, but for travelers thinking of taking in a pre-Lenten Carnival somewhere, it's time to start planning.

In the great hot-beds of Carnival such as New Orleans and other Gulf Coast cities, Rio de Janeiro and some of the Caribbean islands, the last-minute planner winds up with less-than-desired accommodations—that is, if any can be found.

Carnival traditionally is celebrated on those two, three or four days preceding Ash Wednesday, which in 1962 will be March 7.

Someone thinking about combining a vacation with Carnival would do well to consider Trinidad, the big British West Indian island a few miles off the coast of Venezuela.

Carnival in Trinidad is one of those spontaneous shows the people put on for themselves, not for the tourists. The costumes and music are riotously wild and imaginative.

Trinidad officially marks only two days of Carnival, Monday and Tuesday (March 5-6 next year), but the people get around that by starting several days early.

For months now the natives have been banding into their parade groups and secretly making the fantastic costumes they hope will win them prizes. Visitors are likely to see such unlikely characters for the tropics as "George Washington" in a powdered wig, a "king" with trailing purple robes and a "Norse man" with horned helmet, all cavorting and singing to the infectious rhythm of steel bands.

The paraders' energy and enthusiasm is boundless as they step and march about. Everywhere there is calypso in this home of the steel band. Some of the marching groups number as many as 500 persons, each group carrying out its own Carnival theme.

Carnival is just frosting to the cake that is Trinidad any time. Although nearly as far from New York as London, Port-of-Spain, Trinidad's capital, is less expensive to reach by plane, even in comparison to winter season economy fares on the Atlantic. Round-trip in a propeller plane is $289 economy class, $407 first class; jet fare is $319 economy class and $437 first class. A jet takes 5½ to 6 hours from New York, while the prop plane is a few hours longer.

Port-of-Spain has several first class hotels, notable, among other things, for a spread of tropical fruit at breakfast sufficient to carry the diner to dinner. Carnival falls in the midst of the high season, but even so rates are not outrageous.

Night life is made vivid by the rhythmic drums and the Limbo dance, with the dancers trying to slither under a bar progressively dropped toward the floor, without touching either bar or floor.

Fort Hill And Allegany Clash Today For City Grid Championship

Teams Meet 26th Time In Holiday Tilt

Sentinels Slightly Favored; Large Crowd Is Expected

A near-sellout crowd is expected to watch Allegany and Fort Hill clash for the city football championship today as the two teams—both having mediocre seasons in comparison with previous years — resume their gridiron rivalry in the annual Thanksgiving Day contest at 1:30 p. m. at Fort Hill stadium.

Charles Lattimer Ed Schwarz

Coach Charley Lattimer's Sentinels will be cast in the role of the favorites as they take the field against Allegany High's defending champions piloted by Ed Schwarz. The Fort Hill eleven scored impressive triumphs over Beall and Martinsburg, two teams which whipped the Campers this season, and have compiled a 6-3-0 record for the year. Allegany will be striving to even its 4-5-0 mark in today's engagement.

Both Also-Rans

Both the Sentinals and the Campers are also-rans in the Cumberland Valley Athletic League whose title was won this year by South High's Rebels of Hagerstown. Allegany was the defending champion, having won the CVAL crown last year after sharing it with Westminister in 1959.

Each of the teams won over LaSalle High's Explorers and the victor in today's classic will wear the city crown. If the contest ends in a deadlock they will share the title.

This will be the 26th holiday encounter between the cross-town rivals with Fort Hill holding a 12-11 edge in wins and two games ending in ties. Overall Fort Hill and Allegany have met 28 times, each other twice in 1944, 1945 and 1946. The Sentinals lead in the series with 14 wins, 11 losses and three ties.

Coach Schwarz will be shooting for his third consecutive Turkey Day triumph. He noted that the Campers will be at nearly full strength for the important clash as he finished workouts Tuesday with light drills.

Schwarz and Jeff Norris will again be in the Allegany lineup after missing the last three games because of a shoulder injury. The speedy pass-catching end "will bolster our offense and make our passing game a more definite threat against Fort Hill," the Alco mentor added.

Two Linemen Out

Unable to suit up for the holiday classic will be two of Allegany's top linemen, tackles Jim Ujcic, a senior, and Tom Miller, a junior. Both were injured in the North Hagerstown contest, the second game of the AHS schedule, and have been out for the season.

Fort Hill completed its final tune-ups with light drills Tuesday and yesterday and Coach Lattimer said the squad is "in fine shape for the game."

Starting quarterback Ronnie Manges will again be at the helm of the Fort Hill eleven after missing several games because of a slight bone fracture. Missing from the Sentinels squad for the "big one" will be junior guard Ray Rowley who suffered a head injury against South Hagerstown and place-kicking specialist Dave Howser, a senior end who had a bone tumor removed from his leg after the opening game and has been out for the season.

Eighty-one boys will dress for the game, 40 from Allegany and 41 from Fort Hill. Twenty-four seniors, including Howser and Ujcie, will bid high school football adieu after today's contest. Of these 15 will be on the Allegany squad and nine will be from Fort Hill.

Schwarz In Fouth Year

Completing his fourth year as Allegany mentor, Schwarz has compiled a 29-10-0 record at the Campobello school. He has won two Turkey Day encounters, defeating Lattimer twice, 20-0 and 21-0, after losing to Bill Hahn, 21-6, in 1958. Lattimer's three-year record at Fort Hill is 22-5-1 including the two losses to Schwarz in the holiday clashes in 1959 and 1960, and Fort Hill's three setbacks this year.

Today's encounter is listed as Fort Hill's home game and officials said yesterday that bleacher seats have been erected at one end of the stadium to provide additional seating for the fans. Both schools have reported their reserved seats "sold out."

Four members of the Monongahela Valley Chapter of the West Virginia Football Officials Association will handle the game. The Clarksburg officials are Carl Keister, referee; William Rollins, umpire; Clovis Radcliffe, head linesman; and Anthony Loretta, field judge.

SENTINELS OUT TO REGAIN CROWN—Fort Hill's Sentinels will be out to regain the city title which has eluded them for the past two years and Coach Charley Lattimer will be gunning for his first win over Allegany tomorrow when the teams clash at the local stadium. Prior to the 1959 game, Fort Hill copped the title 11 times and shared it twice in 13 games. The Sentinels pictured left to right: FIRST ROW—Wellington Donahue, Stanley Radcliffe, Gary Henry, Ronald White, Jesse York, Walter Merrill, Ronald Manges, Jack Wallace and Roy Collins. SECOND ROW—Colin Smith, David Spence, Roger Rice, Richard Robinson, Delbert Proudfoot, Ray Rowley, Jerry Shook, Wally Swayne, Jay Carnell. McNEELEY TO FIND DIFFERENCE TAKING ON FIRST-RATE FIGHTER

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

Nat Fleischer, the noted historian who goes beyond the halcyon days of Jack Dempsey, would like to give Boston's Tom McNeeley Jr. a bit of a chance against heavyweight boxing champion Floyd Patterson, but he can't.

"McNeeley showed a terrific punch when I saw him in Madison Square Garden against George Logan," says the veteran Fleischer, "if he can only land it. He's wild. He leaves himself open and you can't do that against a good Patterson.

"McNeeley is not ready yet. However, it is possible it will be a good fight in the early rounds."

Who is this McNeeley who fights Patterson in Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens on Monday, Dec. 4? What are his credentials?

He will be 25 on Feb. 21, was born in Cambridge, Mass., has a millionaire, Peter Fuller, for a manager, a five-month old daughter and a beautiful wife, Nancy Gray, a former Miss New Hampshire. His manager is the son of former Massachusetts Gov. Alvan T. Fuller.

This looks like a soft touch for Patterson, and his manager, Cus D'Amato, must be commended for putting this one over. McNeeley is ranked 11th by the National Boxing Association, eighth by Fleischer's Ring Magazine.

The fight originally was scheduled for Boston. But Cus D'Amato insisted on a neutral site. Boston certainly wasn't neutral. McNeeley's dad, a former amateur heavyweight, is a licensed referee in Massachusetts. Tom Sr. taught his son to fight. He now is a florist.

Young Tom, at a bulky 205 pounds, probably will outweigh Patterson by a few pounds. As a sophomore, McNeeley boxed for Michigan State and became known as the Wild Bull of the Campus.

McNeeley stiffened 13 of his first 15 second-rate rivals in 1958 and 1959. He had seven bouts last year but only one this year. He has been knocked down. He is not the boastful sort and really doesn't know how good—or bad—he actually is. His first meeting with a first-rate fighter should tell that story.

HEAD-LINE ACCOMPLISHMENT—A freak, to be sure, is this deer bagged by Ray Morgan of Roy, Utah, with one horn turned up and the other down. Morgan shot the deer near Evanston, Wyo.

Morgan To Meet Charnley On Monday

LONDON (UPI) — L. C. Morgan, a lightweight from Youngstown, Ohio, will meet Dave Charnley, British and Empire champion in a 10-round bout at Manchester on Monday as scheduled, matchmaker Micky Duff announced Wednesday.

Morgan arrived at London Airport from New York claiming that he was suffering from influenza and intended asking for one week's postponement.

After a discussion at his hotel with the promoter, Harry Levene, Morgan retracted his earlier statement and said "I have now fully recovered from the cold I had."

Terry Downes To Have Warmup Bout

LONDON (AP)—Terry Downes, part holder of the world middleweight boxing title, was given permission Wednesday to have a warmup fight before defending his crown against Paul Pender in Boston, Mass.

The 25-year-old Londoner got the go-ahead from the British board of control, which thus defied a ban clamped on Downes by the boxing authorities of Massachusetts.

Downes has been out of action with a thumb injury since he took the title from Pender in London last July.

Last week Massachusetts boxing officials ruled Downes must not fight again until he has fulfilled his contract with Pender.

Coach Jim Manges, the former place-kicking specialist of Bill Hahn's Fort Hill teams of yesteryear and slugger of Bobby Cavanaugh Sentinel nines, will place a perfect Turkey Day football coaching record on the line today when his LaSalle Explorers do battle with Jerry Calhoun's Beall High Mountaineers in the 16th game of their series.

Jim Manges Jerry Calhoun

The opening kickoff is set for 1:30 p. m., and officials in charge of the game will be from the Valley Officials Association of Winchester, Va.

Manges was the city extra point kicking champion when he played football at Fort Hill and he was also batting champion in the County High School League.

Manges Batting 1.000

In 1956 he coached at Beall High School and his Mountaineers cracked LaSalle's four-year winning streak in the Thanksgiving Day game,7-6. Last year he took over the coaching reins at LaSalle and on Turkey Day his Explorers snapped Beall's 4-year victory skein, 21-6, giving him a 2-0 record in the holiday battles. Manges also was Fort Hill's regular halfback in 1946 and 1947 when the Sentinels beat Allegany, 21-0 and 25-0. In 1947 he kicked 32 points-after-touchdowns which was then a new city record.

Jerry Calhoun is winding up his fifth year at Beall High and a win today would give him his best season at Frostburg since he assumed command in 1957. His Mountaineers have won six and lost three this season and a 7-3 mark would give the Mountain City school its winningest season since the sport was revived there in 1946. Beall's previous high was 6-4 in 1957. Calhoun has had a winner every year at Beall and his 5-year mark there is 27-19-2. He was 5-4-1 in 1958 and 1959 and 5-4 last year.

Beall Is Favorite

Beall's most prized triumph of the season was a 6-0 decision over Allegany which beat LaSalle 19-7. The Explorers held Fort Hill to a 7-6 score in the season opener and Fort Hill belted Beall 25-0. Beall held Keyser to a 6-0 score and "Tack" Clark's team whipped LaSalle, 19-0. On comparative scores Beall figures to be the favorite in today's contest.

In Manges' first year at LaSalle his team won six and lost four. His present team is 5-4 and it could equal its 1960 mark by winning today.

A crowd of approximately 2,500 is expected to witness today's game. LaSalle leads in the series with nine wins, five losses and one tie game.

Scoring Race Close

The outcome of the race for individual scoring honors in Cumberland will hinge on the outcome of the Beall-LaSalle and Allegany-Fort Hill contests today. The current leader is Terry McElfish, of LaSalle, who has 56 points to his credit. Bill Stakem, his teammate, holds the runner-up spot with 55 and Colin Smith of Fort Hill is third with 50 tallies. Mike Harvey of Allegany is fourth with 40.

Cards Are Ready For Steelers Game

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Coach Frank (Pop) Ivy appeared jubilant Wednesday that his entire St. Louis Cardinals offensive unit will be ready for Sunday's game against the Pittsburgh Steelers, including quarterback Sam Etcheverry and quarterback Ralph Guglielmi plenty of passing practice.

"We know we're taking a chance on getting someone hurt," Ivy said, "but we just have to do it and we intend to continue having them work on their blocking a little each day."

What pleased Ivy most, was the fact that offensive tackle Ed Cook and halfback John David Crow appeared recovered from injuries to see action at Pittsburgh.

Robinson Is National's MVP

Cincinnati Star Given 15 Votes

BOSTON (UPI) — In as fine a wedding present as a baseball player ever received, slugger Frank Robinson of the Cincinnati Reds Wednesday was chosen the National League's most valuable player for 1961 by near-unanimous acclaim.

The 26-year-old outfielder, whose batting power helped the Reds win their first National League pennant in 21 years, received 15 first-place votes and one for second place from the 16-man selection committee of the Baseball Writers Association of America. The committee was made up of two writers from each league city.

"Wow, this is a wonderful wedding present for me," said Robinson upon hearing the news at his home in Cincinnati. Robinson was married on Oct. 28 to Barbara Cole of Los Angeles.

The lithe Negro outfielder, who batted .323, hit 37 home runs and drove in 124 runs, is the first Cincinnati player to win this award since first baseman Frank McCormick in 1940.

NO COLLEGE CAPER—A sophomore at Smith College, Julia Chase, 19, of Groton, Conn., has caused quite a stir in track circles as she attempted to gain entry, and was refused, in the Chicopee, Mass., marathon race against male competitors. Julia ran unofficially and finished less than a minute behind the male winner.

Syracuse Hosts Liberty Bowl

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) —Syracuse will be the host school for the third annual Liberty Bowl game here Dec. 16 with bowl association President Ambrose (Bud) Dudley wistfully hoping for a rematch between the Orange and Notre Dame.

Syracuse, coached by Ben Schwartzwalder, accepted the bid in an announcement made simultaneously by Dudley here, and by Lew Andreas, athletic director for the Orange, at Syracuse.

No opponent was named, but immediately the names of Syracuse and Notre Dame, who figured in a rules hassle last weekend when the Irish won by a disputed field goal, were linked.

Owners Nullify NBA Trade

NEW YORK (UPI) — National Basketball Association owners voted Wednesday to nullify the eight-player trade agreed upon last weekend by the St. Louis Hawks and Chicago Packers.

As a result, all the players involved will remain with the original clubs.

In the proposed deal, the Hawks would have sent Woody Sauldsberry, Si Green, Joe Graboski and Fred Lecour to the Packers for Archie Dees, Barney Cable, Ralph Davis and another player to be determined later.

Salem, Wesleyan To Clash Today

CLARKSBURG, W. Va. (UPI)—Wesleyan will pit its crunching rushing game against air-minded Salem in the second annual West Virginia Bowl football game here Thursday.

The bowl game pits the winners of the eastern and western divisions of the state conference. However, Wesleyan already has been acclaimed league champion and no title is at stake.

Heading the Wesleyan attack is Bill Wood and Jim Hawkins. Wood won the WVC rushing title with a total of 818 yards gained while Hawkins took the scoring race with 75 points.

Mets Meet Cards In March 10 Game

NEW YORK (UPI) — Casey Stengel, returning to baseball, and the New York Mets, just starting out in it, will be on competitive display for the first time, March 10, 1962, when they open their exhibition season against the St. Louis Cardinals at Al Lang Field, St. Petersburg, Fla.

The game will be the first of a 29-game exhibition schedule arranged by Stengel and General Manager George Weiss to tune the team for its maiden season in the National League.

College Football's Longest Weekend Could Be Dizziest

Four Games Are On Tap For Today

Texas Heads Card, Wildcats, Miami To Clash Friday

(Reg. U.S. Pat. Off.)
By STEVE SNIDER

NEW YORK (UPI) — College football's longest weekend also could be the dizziest.

There'll be action Thursday, Friday and Saturday with Ohio State, Minnesota, Texas and UCLA picked to win the key games. That means Ohio State over Michigan, Minnesota over Wisconsin, Texas over Texas A&M, and UCLA over Southern California but it's well to remember form frequently flies out the window when ancient rivals meet.

Starting at the beginning:

Thanksgiving

Texas 21, Texas A&M 8 —Back in business.

Virginia Tech 20, VMI 14—Tech played beefier schedule.

Richmond 15, William and Mary 7—Should be hungry after 'Bama rout.

Friday

Northwestern 14, Miami 7-Only if Wildcats play it serious.

And around the nation on Saturday:

The East

Penn State 21, Pittsburgh 17—A toughie; could go other way.

Rutgers 20, Columbia 14 —End of perfect season.

Princeton 28, Dartmouth 20 — For piece of Ivy title.

Harvard 16, Yale 7—And another share for Harvard.

Syracuse 21, Boston College 7—Ernie Davis winds it up.

Also: Cornell 14, Pennsylvania 7; Holy Cross 21, Connecticut 7.

The Midwest

Ohio State 14, Michigan 7 — Rugged all the way.

Minnesota 21, Wisconsin 14 — Stephens outpoints Ron Miller.

Notre Dame 17, Iowa 14 — In regulation time.

Colorado 14, Iowa State 7—For the Big Eight title.

Kansas 20, Missouri 6 — Jayhawks clicking now.

Also: Michigan State 28, Illinois 7; Purdue 20, Indiana 13; Oklahoma 21, Nebraska 7; Detroit 14, Cincinnati 8; Oklahoma State 19, Kansas State 7.

The South

Louisiana State 23, Tulane 7—Too much of everything.

Tennessee 21, Kentucky 15 — A flier on the single wing.

North Carolina 14, Wake Forest 7—Another local hassle.

Auburn 17, Florida 7— Bobby Hunt is in the groove.

Also: Vanderbilt 16, South Carolina 14; North Carolina State 22, Clemson 20; Maryland 21, Virginia 7; Mississippi Southern 21, Trinity U., 7.

The Southwest

Arkansas 21, Texas Tech 8 — For a title chance.

Also: Arizona 28, Arizona State 20; New Mexico 21, Brigham Young 7; New Mexico State 20, Hardin Simmons 6; Houston 14, Florida State 10.

The Far West

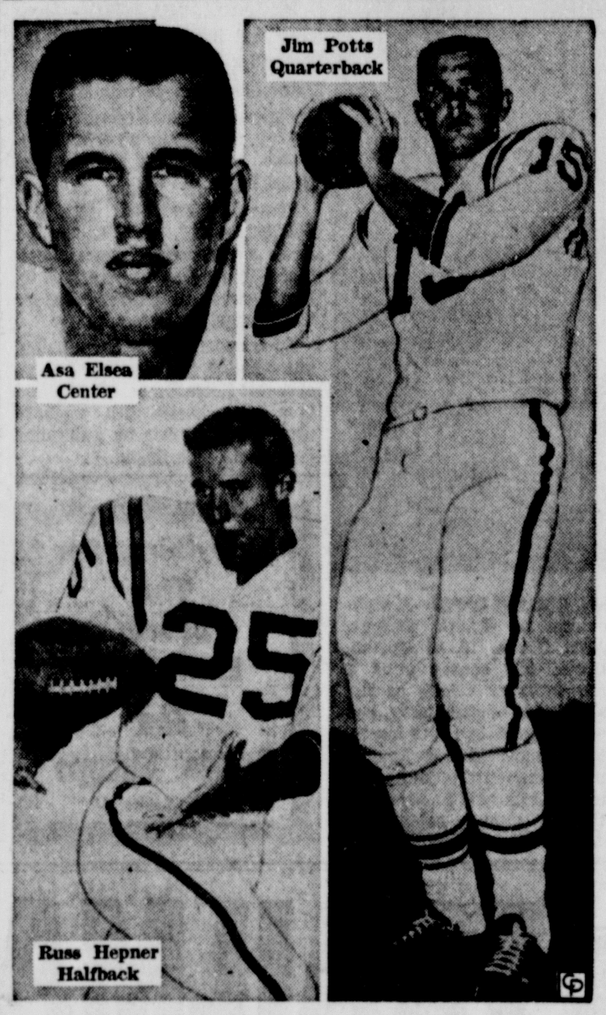

UCLA 21, Southern California 14 —Rose Bowl berth may be payoff.

California 20, Stanford 7— Back in own league.

Oregon 13, Oregon State 7 — Tossup.

Washington 20, Washington State 14—Beware of State's passes.

On many farms, less than half the potential nutrients in hay and silage actually reach the livestock.

ERRAND OF MERCY—Three of the stars of the Bowling Green State University team of Bowling Green, O., who meet the Fresno State team in the Mercy Bowl Thanksgiving morning in the Los Angeles Coliseum, are pictured. Russ Hepner is the leading ground gainer and pass receiver; Jim Potts has a .564 average in passing and Asa Elsea is the extra point maker. The game is being played to raise money for those involved in that tragic plane crash in October of 1960 when 17 California State Polytechnic players were killed after a game with Bowling Green. (Central Press)

Confidence In Bart Starr Paying Off For Packers

Green Bay Ace Leading Passer In Pro Grid Loop

NEW YORK (UPI) — It's often said in professional football that confidence is the difference between a winning player and a mediocre one—and Bart Starr of the Green Bay Packers is a perrect illustration.

Starr, a soft-spoken native of Alabama, broke into the pro ranks six years ago as one of the hottest passers in the land. It was almost a foregone conclusion that he would make the pros with little trouble.

However, in order to win the No. 1 job with the Packers, all he had to do was push Tobin Rote out of a job. Of course, he didn't. After Rote came Babe Parilli and then Lamar McHan, both passers with considerable experience. Again, Starr played second fiddle.

But toward the end of the 1960 season, he began to mature, and Green Bay coach Vince Lombardi decided that he couldn't have two No. 1 quarterbacks. So, he traded McHan away to Baltimore and gave the job to the 27-year-old Starr.

Move Paid Off

The move has paid off handsomely for both the Packers and Starr, who tops the National Football League's passers for the second straight week. Although he leads in none of the six categories on which the NFL passers are rated, Starr tops the list again because of overall ability and balance. He is second in completion percentage and percent of interceptions, third in total yards and average gain, fourth in TD passes and fifth in total completions.

Altogether he has completed 120 passes for 1,788 yards gained and 14 touchdowns for a percentage of 58.5. Sonny Jurgensen of the Philadelphia Eagles has gained 2,391 yards on 162 completions for a 56.1 percentage but he has thrown 84 more passes.

Milt Plum of the Cleveland Browns has the best completion percentage—61.1 on 124 completions of 203 passes — for third place among league passers, while Billy Wade of the Bears ranks fourth and Y. A. Tittle of the Giants is fifth.

Marvelous Jimmy Brown of the Browns gained 237 yards in 33 carries against the Eagles last Sunday to run his rushing total to 1,090 yards—263 yards more than Jim Taylor of the Packers has gained. Nick Pietrosante of the Lions is a distant third at 679, Alex Webster of the Giants is fourth at 672 and Joe Perry of the Colts is fifth at 574.

Phillips Replaced Sofner

Jim Phillips of the Rams replaced Del Shofner of the Giants as the leading pass catcher—but by a whisker. Phillips has caught 51 passes for 815 yards and three TDs, while Shofner has caught 51 for 812 yards and 8 TDs. Ray Berry of the Colts is third again with 50 catches for 597 yards and no TDs, Tommy McDonald is fourth with 45 catches for 679 yards and 7 TDs and Lenny Moore of the Colts is fifth with 44 catches for 652 yards and 8 TDs.

Paul Hornung, who left for Army service a week ago, still has a comfortable lead in the point-scoring race. His 130 point total is 46 more than Moore. Alex Groza of the Browns is third with 71, while Buddy Dial of the Steelers, Taylor and Bobby Walston of the Eagles all are tied with 66.

Yale Lary of the Lions continues to lead in punting with a 47.9 average on 43 kicks. Bobby Joe Green is second again with a 47.4 average on 12 more kicks and Tommy Davis of the Forty Niners is third with a 46.3 mark for 40 kicks.

In other categories, Dick Lynch of the Giants is the pass interception leader with 9; Willie Wood of the Packers leads the punt returners with 10 for 200 yards, and Pat Studstill of the Lions leads in kickoff returns with 11 for 354 yards.

Notre Dame Says Rules In Conflict

Committee Asked To Make Study

By ED SAINSBURY

CHICAGO (UPI) — A Notre Dame athletic official Wednesday challenged a rules interpretation that the Irish should not have been granted a second chance to kick a game winning field goal against Syracuse Saturday.

He pointed out that in the 1961 NCAA football rules interpretations, rule 2, section 1, a sentence reads:

"Although a free ball, a scrimmage kick from behind A's line is treated as though in possession of team A if the penalty for roughing the kicker ... is accepted."

Rules interpreters Bill Reed, commissioner of the Big Ten, and Asa Bushnell, commissioner of the Eastern College Athletic Conference, ruled Tuesday that the second kick should not have been granted because the ball was not in the possession of Notre Dame.

The Reed-Bushnell interpretation quoted a rule that "a foul during the kick, including roughing the kicker, will not extend the period as the ball is not in (the kicking team's) possession."

The two conflicting provisions of the rules emphasized Reed's position that the episode exposed "a glaring weakness" in the rules.

He also intimated that the interpretation against giving Notre Dame a second kick was an "inequity."

The Notre Dame spokesman said the "stand that we had no possession is absolutely erroneous. Those people didn't look up what constitutes possession.

"When there is a roughing penalty, it indicates possession is still considered to be team A, and I can't understand how they could rule otherwise. It's concrete in the book."

Meanwhile, there was no change in the position of Notre Dame that its 17-15 victory stands, or the position of Syracuse that the Irish should forfeit the game, 15-14.

Notre Dame has asked for study by a special rules committee and Syracuse has supported the plea.

Maine Finishes Season Unbeaten; Beats Mass., 10-7

ORONO, Maine (UPI)— The University of Maine completed its second unbeaten season in history and won the Yankee Conference crown Wednesday by defeating the University of Massachusetts, 10-7, in a tight defensive battle.

The difference was a field goal made by Maine and a field goal try by UMass that sailed wide of the goalposts.

Maine finished its season with an 8-0-1 record as New England's only undefeated college football team.

Maine opened the scoring with 2:35 left in the first half when quarterback Manch Wheeler faked a hand-off and rolled two yards around left end on a keeper play.

Dave Brown, a halfback, set up the touchdown with a fine 27-yard punt return to the Massachusetts 47. Roger Boucher booted his 15th extra point of the season in 15 tries.

Laver And Shepherd Advance To Finals In Tennis Tourney

ADELAIDE, Australia (UPI)—Rod Laver and John Shepherd Thursday earned the right to meet the powerful Australian doubles team of Neale Fraser and Roy Emerson in the final of the South Australian Tennis championships.

Laver and Shepherd defeated Colin Stubbs and Will Coghlan, 6-4, 6-2, 6-1, while Fraser and Emerson outlasted John Newcombe and Ken Fletcher, 6-4, 7-5, 3-6, 9-7, in semi-final matches.

Stubbs and Coghlan, a pair of unseeded players, had gained the semifinal round by upsetting Wimbledon finalists, Bob Hewitt and Fred Stolle, 6-4, 7-5.

In the women's semifinals, Margaret Smith and Robyn Ebbern eliminated Darlene Hard of Montebello, Calif., and Yolanda Ramirez of Mexico, 6-2, 8-6, while Jan Lehane and Lesley Turner ousted Gwen Toohey and Jenny Robinson, 6-1, 6-3.

There are about 35,000 swimming pools in the United States.

Texas To Meet Aggies Today In Top Game

First Mercy Bowl Tilt Also Slated

By United Press International

Once-mighty Texas meets Texas A&M in college football's top Thanksgiving Day game with the Longhorns seeking to rebound after last week's defeat and clinch a Cotton Bowl berth and a share of the Southwest Conference title.

Texas is a 13-point favorite in the nationally-televised game over ABC-TV, starting at 2:15 p.m. (EST).

The fifth-ranked Longhorns, who were knocked out of the No. 1 spot in the United Press International ranking by a 6-0 loss to Texas Christian, are expected to be at full strength. The Aggies, however, have 10 men on the injured list, including three-fourths of their backfield. Only tackle George Hogan is definitely out.

In other leading holiday games, Bowling Green plays Fresno State in the first Mercy Bowl game at Los Angeles for the benefit of the plane victims from the California Poly football team; Colgate engages Brown; VMI tangles with Virginia Tech; Richmond meets William and Mary; Memphis State takes on Chattanooga, and Washington (Mo.) meets Washington and Lee.

Pittsburg (Kan.) State, the nation's No. 1 small college team, plays northern South Dakota State in a clash of unbeatens. The winner will advance to the finals of the NAIA playoffs.

Texas is in contention with Arkansas for the Cotton Bowl and Southwest championship. Both teams are 5-1 in league play. If the Longhorns win, they automatically gain the bowl berth, having defeated Arkansas, 33-7, earlier this season.

But if Texas loses or ties, and Arkansas beats Texas Tech Saturday, the Razorbacks would get both the crown and the bowl invitation.

In the Mercy Bowl, Bowling Green is a slight favorite over the Mid-American Conference winner, Fresno State, unbeaten and untied in nine games. Bowling Green was the opponent of Cal Poly of San Luis Obispo the day of the disastrous air crash in Toledo last year.

Hornung To Play Against Lions

DETROIT (UPI) — Pvt. Paul Hornung, the National Football League's highest scorer, will be in uniform Thursday when the Green Bay Packers collided with the Detroit Lions, but he'll see only "spot duty."

Instead, rookie Elijah Pitts will get the starting call at the running back spot in this annual Turkey Day battle and game of the week in the National Football League before a sellout crowd of 55,000.

Guelker Sees Tough Fight For NCAA Soccer Title

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Bob Guelker, St. Louis University soccer coach, figured Wedneday if his team gets past Rutgers in the semi-finals of the NCAA playoffs here Thanksgiving Day, the Billikens will find the going rough in the finals.

"We'll then have to face either West Chester or Bridgeport in the final and both those clubs have a score to settle with us," Guelker said.

St. Louis defeated West Chester in the semifinals last year, 2-1, and in 1959 the Billikens got past Bridgeport, 5-2, in the final to win the championship.

Thurday's contests here will mark the third consecutive year that West Chester has made the semi-final round, and Guelker said the "Easterners are probably fed up with just coming close."

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Dorothy Manners

(Substituting for vacationing Louella Parsons)

HOLLYWOOD, — A smart bit of casting has been pulled off by Milton Sperling in giving Horst Bucholz the title role of "Nijinsky." The tragic story of the brilliant Russian ballet star who died at the age of 52 after years in a mental hospital, goes before the cameras in '62 in London.

Horst, coming up fast after "Fenny" and the soon to be re-a striking physical resemblance to the dancer. And the dancing can be done by an expert.

Sperling's "Nijinsky," is based on the book written by the dancer's wife Romola and deals with his life and career between the ages of 21 to 25.

Zingy Zsa Zsa Gabor may begin to feel more kindly about California since her manager, Bill Fix, got her a whopping amount for a not-too-big role in "Boys Night Out."

Understandably, Zsa Zsa was all for leaving movietown forever after her $400,000 mansion was burned to the ground in the recent holocaust.

So potent is the publicity pull of Zsa Zsa's name, that she's worth the moola the Messrs. Joe Levine and Martin Ransohoff are shelling out for her in the Kim Novak-James Garner starrer.

Sid Luft, who has been so down in the dumps since he and Judy Garland parted, did everything he could to make her happy (and try for a reconciliation?) during her hurried trip to the coast.

While dining at Romanoff's, a huge bowl of Judy's favorite flowers arrived at their table, already festive with champagne and caviar. Of course, Sid sent them. I think he would do anything to get Judy to change her mind. Who knows? Maybe she will.

This should amuse Miss Louella Parsons whose new book, "Tell it to Louella," recounts so many times she has jumped the gun on stories. From London, Arthur Hornblow relays:

"I was casting around for a lead in John Hersey's 'The War Lover' and hadn't decided on anyone. Then I picked up a New York paper and saw that Louella said I had settled on Steve McQueen. Don't know why I hadn't thought of McQueen before, but Louella convinced me he was just right for the pilot who loves war." See there, LOP? You break scoops BEFORE they happen.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

It's a girl for the Edward Dmytryks. The pre-Thanksgiving blessing has been named Rebecca.

Gene Barry cables from Brazil: "Open my nightclub act at Copacabana Palace in Rio on Thanksgiving. Hope it isn't a turkey."

Joe Levine, who has been trained by LOP to know "news" when he counters it, surprised even her. Barely conscious following surgery on his knee at Peter Bent Brigham Hospital in Boston, Joe called Louella to report that Ibn Saud, Shah of Saudi Arabia, is a patient in the room adjoining his!

Cliff Robertson, burned out of his home, is sharing a bachelor apartment with former La Jolla High School friend, Bob Shelton, until he can find another house.

Tony Franciosa expects to be in New York from Rome in time for Thanksgiving dinner with girlfriend Judy Kanter and their families. A marriage isn't far off.

Irving Lazar hosting a party at Romanoff's including Haya Harareet, the Kirk Douglases, Jean Simmons and the Billy Wilders.

Patti Page and Charlie O'Curran sit down to family dinner in Tulsa Thursday with Patti's parents, seven brothers, three sisters and 24 small fry nieces and nephews.

Gets Federal Post

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Homer J. Freeman, 54, a career government employe, Wednesday was appointed head of the Labor Department's new Division of Youth Employment. Freeman, now an official for the department's Bureau of Employment Security in Kansas City, Mo., was selected by Labor Secretary Arthur J. Goldberg.

To shape and strengthen your feet and legs for beauty, become a smart, knowing foot doodler!

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Be Foot-Happy—Join The Foot-Doodlers!

Pen and pencil doodlers are a common enough sight but a foot doodler is rare. Besides being rare, foot doodlers are right smart folk, to boot. They can shape and strengthen their feet and legs without taking time out to exercise!

It's a cinch if you just master a few easy routines. After you can perform them automatically, you can run through them while doing any number of other things, such as reading, studying, telephoning, or writing letters—yes, and even while you're resting.

Here are some of the best that foot doodlers do. All can be performed with the shoes either on or off.

1. This one relieves tiredness, toughens the feet, and contours the back of the calf. While sitting with your knees crossed, flex the raised ankle hard so that the toe points up toward the ceiling. Feel a real pull in your calf muscle? That's good; hold the position for a few seconds. Then stretch the foot down until your toe points to the floor. Hold again. Repeat several times and then recross your knees to give the other foot the same treatment.

2. While still seated with your knees crossed, rotate your foot upward and inward. Try to make the sole face the ceiling. You can't, of course, but the attempt is what produces the benefit. While your foot is in this upturned position, clench your toes hard and continue the rotation until your foot is back in starting position. Relax and repeat ten times. Practice with the other foot. Besides relieving foot fatigue, the routine is an excellent slimmer of the side-calf bulge.

3. Whenever you see enlarged joints and unsightly bunions, you are viewing the sad effects of faulty alignment. This exercise helps to keep the big toes where they should be, which is most essential to both beauty and comfort of your feet: Place both feet on the floor about two inches apart. Without moving your feet out of position, stretch your big toes toward each other. When you first try, your toes may remain almost immobile, but after practice they'll become more agile. That's when your feet will become more shapely!

Broadens Products

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Gulf Oil Corp. plans to expand and intensify the market of its specialty products which include a wide range of household and farm insecticides, waxes, household oil and cigarette lighter fuel. A key objective of the new program, a spokesman said, is to broaden availability of the products on the shelves of supermarkets and other retail stores.

Pidgin English is a mixture of English, French and Portuguese.

Eat More Sweets

CHICAGO (UPI)—The Candy, Chocolate and Confectionery Institute has predicted a banner year for those who cater to the nation's sweet tooth. Dollar sales for confections were up 5 per cent in the first nine months of 1961, and the total weight of confections sold increased 6 per cent.

Sociologist Says Drinkers Lack Hobbies

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (UPI)—A University of North Carolina sociologist reports that many people drink heavily because "they have nothing else to do."

"When a person has several recreation interests," said Dr. Douglas H. Sessoms, "a person is not likely to be concerned with how to spend his leisure."

Sessoms made the observation in two educational journals on alcohol and alcoholism of the two Carolinas.

"There may be something in one's use of leisure which makes him more vulnerable to alcoholism and chronic drinking," he added. "For many, drinking is more than a social skill or a part of a leisure experience. It is a single use of time, a way of recreation in itself."

When a person has only one or two leisure interests, free time becomes a problem, he said. The individual seeks out an activity which requires little of him yet fills his time. Excessive drinking is such activity.

"If youth are taught the arts and skills of leisure the chance of their using drinking as recreation is lessened."

Afghans Buy Trucks

PLAINFIELD, N.J. (UPI) — Mack Trucks Inc. Wednesday announced the sale of 79 diesel powered dump trucks to the Afhganistan Highway Constructors. The trucks were sold through the Neely Coble Co., Nashville, Tenn.

Outbreak Of Piracy Strikes Celebes Sea

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The worst outbreak of piracy since the early 18th Century has struck the Celebes Sea in the Southwest Pacific, the National Geographic Society reported Tuesday.

A spokesman for the society said the pirates were a "new breed who prowl the seas in fast motorized ships" and prey on local shipping."

LONDON (UPI)—Sir Winston Churchill, 86, visited the House of Commons Wednesday to pay tribute to the one M.P. older than himself, Laborite David Gilbert Logan. It was Logan's 90th birthday.

JERUSALEM, Israel (UPI)—Benjamin Eliav, Israel's New York consul-general, will be nominated as Israeli ambassador to Moscow, official sources said Wednesday.

Protest Meat Prices

Missing In Storm

MANILA (UPI)—One ship was reported sunk and three others missing Wednesday in a tropical storm off the southeastern Philippines. The 14 crew members of a fishing vessel were rescued.

Stock Market Irregular; Tobacco Stocks Strong

NEW YORK (UPI) — Widespread strength in tobacco shares and broad moves in a number of special situations highlighted another churning, irregular stock market Wednesday.

For the fifth consecutive session, prices failed to establish a decisive trend. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index showed a loss of 0.08 while Dow-Jones industrials gained 1.10.

A total of 1,320 issues were traded with 540 advancing, 80 to new highs, and 574 declining, 14 to new lows. Trading amounted to 4.5 million shares against 4,890,000 in the prior session.

American Tobacco accounted for a considerable portion of the rise in D-J industrials with a gain of 2¾. Nearly every other listed tobacco stock was also up between 1 and 4 points, apparently responding to rising consumption and frequent market letter plugs rather than any specific industry news.

Eastman Kodak and Union Carbide recovered a point each in the chemicals, Anaconda climbed 1⅜ and Sears Roebuck dipped another ⅝ despite a boosted quarterly dividend, an enlarged extra and record nine months profits. Lukens climbed 1¼ but other steel as well as motors moved fractionally.

Dow-Jones rails showed strictly fractional changes but would up losing 0.47. Utilities were ahead 0.18 with American Electric Power, Panhandle and People's Gas up 1 or more and Cleveland Electric and Pacific Gas down at least 1.

Union, Paper Firm Resume Talks Monday

Offers Rejected By Three Locals

Union negotiation committees representing paper workers of Luke, Covington, Va., and Williamsburg, Pa., who broke off contract negotiation talks Saturday without reaching an agreement on a new contract with West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company will resume talks Monday in Washington.

Wilbur "Farmer" Johnson, president of Luke Local 676, United Papermakers and Paperworkers AFL-CIO, said yesterday he received notification from Harry Scott, vice president of the union, that talks will resume at 1 p. m. Monday at the Hamilton Hotel in Washington.

At that time the union negotiation committees will attempt to reach an agreement on a new contract with the company.

Nearly 3,600 workers are involved in the contract negotiations which broke off Saturday without an agreement on a new pact.

The union members have been working without a contract since the old pact expired last Thursday.

Action taken by the three locals authorizes union negotiators to call a strike if they cannot reach a satisfactory agreement.

The Williamsburg local was the last of the three to reject the latest proposal of the company, with the decision coming Tuesday night.

Donald Farringer, president of the Williamsburg local, said the vote was unanimous but the balloting was not a strike vote.

Employes of the other two mills voted earlier to reject a company contract offer and cast their ballots instead for union authorization to call a strike.

Mr. Johnson pointed out that no strike would be called until the three locals received authorization from the national organization. He indicated this may take several weeks.

Frostburg Man Gets 90 Days In Auto Case

James Taylor, 27, of Park Avenue, Frostburg, was lodged in the county jail yesterday to serve 90 days for violation of state motor vehicle laws.

Taylor was tried before Frostburg Magistrate Frank P. Kelly on charges of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle, operating on a revoked license, reckless driving and traveling in excess of 60 miles an hour in a 30-mile zone.

The young man was arrested in the vicinity of Eckhart after Sgt. Karl Hetz and Patrolman Edward Bevans of the Frostburg Police Department saw him speeding through Frostburg. They gave chase in the police cruiser and stopped him near Eckhart.

The police discovered he was driving a car that had been taken a few minutes before from in front of the residence of Thomas Sluss, Broadway, Frostburg. The arrest was made at 3:20 a.m. and Sluss did not know his car had been moved until it was returned by the police.

Magistrate Kelly gave Park 60 days on the revoked license charge and 30 days for unauthorized use, to run consecutively. He suspended jail sentences on the other two charges.

THOMAS A. MAGRUDER III

PATTI DeVELBISS

Will Represent District At National 4-H Meeting

As a reward for their efforts in 4-H Club work, two Garrett County youths will be among 27 Maryland 4-H'ers who will leave Baltimore on Friday to travel to Chicago where they will attend the 40th annual national 4-H Congress November 26-30.

They are Patti DeVelbiss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis DeVelbiss, Aaron Run, and Thomas A. Magruder III, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Magruder, also of Aaron Run near Westernport.

Patti, who is a senior at Bruce High School, was given the opportunity to attend the conference for her project on recreation.

Young Magruder, a student at Western Maryland College, is making the trip for his achievement in a safety project. Both youths are members of the Chickasaw 4-H Club of Westernport.

Already state winners in their various project activities, most of the youths are competing for national recognition with 4-H'ers from throughout the nation and Puerto Rico.

The champions' expense-paid trip will begin at a send-off luncheon at a Baltimore hotel on Friday. They will travel to Chicago by train.

At the conference, the Marylanders, representing 12 counties, will participate in city tours, parties and receptions held in their honor by sponsors and promoters of 4-H activities.

Educational tours of museums and the International Live Stock Exposition, a horse show and a pops concert will also be featured.

Social Agencies Protest Closing Of VA Office

Cite Service To Tri-State Vets

The affiliation of social, welfare and health agencies whose representatives meet here each month to discuss mutual problems and referrals from one agency to another has gone on record vigorously opposing the abandonment of the local contact office of the Veterans Administration.

F. Allan Weatherholt, trial magistrate, and Mrs. Jennie J. Grahame, administrative assistant in the County Health Department, were instructed to draft a letter to be signed by a representative of each agency.

The letters are being sent to the Administrator of the Veterans Administration, to Sen. J. Glenn Beall, Sen. John Marshall Butler and Rep. Charles McC. Mathias, as well as members of the House and Senate from neighboring West Virginia and Pennsylvania.

It was pointed out by the group that this VA office services thousands of veterans in this tri-state area, and that all local agencies have had occasion to refer veterans or members of their families to the local contact office.

The work and cooperation of Sam Weston, local VA contact officer, was praised by the group. They expressed the view that it will be far more costly for the VA to pay transportation to Baltimore for veterans from this area seeking various services than it will to maintain and retain the office in Cumberland.

The letter said, "We feel the government is failing to keep faith with its veterans and that this office is a definite asset to the community."

Action came after Sam Weston, who has been serving as the group chairman, said he wished to resign because he may be leaving the city as his office is one of a number to be closed in an economy move. By motion of Francis Kenney of the Maryland Department of Employment Security, the group voted to reject the resignation and urged Mr. Weston to remain as chairman until the end of his current term or as long as he remains in the city.

There was discussion by the group of several policy changes of some of the agencies.

Raymond Messmer, superintendent of Sylvan Retreat; Mrs. Ora Mae Lewis, executive secretary of the Allegany-Garrett Heart Association, and Paul Messinger of the Salvation Army were welcomed as new members.

Homer Higgins, supervisor of pupil personnel for the Board of Education, and Mrs. Evelyn Bowie of the Allegany County Youth Commission have accepted invitations to affiliate, but had previous engagements at the time of this month's meeting.

The next session will be held at the Fort Cumberland Hotel, December 13 at noon.

Jurors Favor Defendant In Trial Here

A verdict for the defendant after same 45 minutes deliberation by the jury ended an all-day civil trial yesterday in Allegany Conuty Circuit Court.

Arthur L. Brill, Bedford Road, was foreman of the jury of nine men and three women, which returned its verdict about 3 p. m. yesterday. Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris presided at the trial.

Mrs. Catherine K. Moore, 115 Harrison Street, brought the suit against Walter Charles Simpson, 917 Grand Avenue. Mrs. Moore contended that her 1961-model automobile, while operated south on High Bedford Street, was struck by the defendant's car which she said pulled from a parked position. Her car went over a high embankment and damages amounted to $1,428.98.

Mr. Simpson, on the other hand, contended that he had not moved his car from its parked position at the time of the accident, about 11:30 p. m. June 6. Some 10 witnesses were heard. Lawrence B. Kelly was driving the Moore vehicle.

William L. Wilson and Leslie J. Clark, attorneys for Mrs. Moore, and Gorman E. Getty, attorney for Mr. Simpson, had agreed on the amount of damage to the woman's car. The jury's problem was to determine which party was negligent. By their verdict the jurors determined that the driver of the plaintiff's car was negligent.

Red Cross Unit Completes Mass Feeding Course

The final session of the Canteen and Emergency Mass Feeding Course was held at the Luke Community Center. Eleven women from Luke completed the course, which was sponsored by Allegany County Chapter for the Westernport-Luke Branch, American Red Cross.

The purpose of the course, developed jointly by the Red Cross and Civil Defense, is to give trainees a full appreciation of the importance of mass feeding in an emergency, and the fundamental principles and problems of emergency feeding.

The course began October 3 with a two hour orientation to Red Cross canteen service by Mrs. Robert Gerson, chairman of volunteers, and Mrs. Sara Lindsay, executive secretary, Allegany County Chapter. It was completed in a six hour session Saturday when the class prepared a meal such as could be served in the event of an emergency.

Mrs. Gladys Eaton, dietitian and supervisor of cafeterias for the Allegany County Board of Education, was instructor. Mrs. Eaton was certified as a nutrition instructor for the Red Cross in 1957. She received her B.S. degree in home economics from the University of Maryland and her master's degree from Pennsylvania State University.

During the instruction period, the class visited two area schools to view large equipment used in the preparation of meals. They also studied ways of devising emergency equipment for preparation of mass meals, such as burners, purifying water, improvised cooking stoves and temporary posts for outdoor cooking.

Nearby Preston County Has 'Smallest' Church

By CHARLES H. KELLY
News Staff Writer

Sightseers traveling south on U. S. Route 219 past Silver Lake in Preston County, W. Va., catch a glimpse of the "smallest church in 48 states," when they glance toward a small forest of evergreens to the right of the scenic route.

During the past four years, thousands of tourists have visited and registered at the tiny memorial church, Our Lady of the Pines, erected in memory of the parents of Mr. and Mrs. Peter L. Milkint who reside nearby.

To give you an idea of the size of the interior, 12 persons can be seated comfortably in the six oak pews. Temporary chairs, plus standing room, allow about 24 persons to hear Mass or attend a wedding ceremony, several of which have been performed in the chapel.

Mr. Milkint, who built the church with help from friends, said a priest from Don Bosco High School in Huttonsville, W. Va., celebrates Mass about once a month in the church, which was completed in the fall of 1957.

15,000 In First Year

The following tourist season some 15,000 sightseers from 42 states and 11 foreign countries walked across the welcome mat at the entrance of the church.

The inside of the tiny church measures 11 feet by 16 feet and the exterior measurements are 11 by 24 feet, according to Mr. Milkint, who said the structure is built of natural stone quarried from a hollow about four miles away and processed by the Fairfax Sand Company in the area.

The inside walls are plywood of a beautiful two-tone brown and tan design, and the ceiling is finished with white plaster.

A turn of two switches throws the beam of a small spotlight on the altar and also lights up a crystal-like cluster of ceiling stars which illuminate the interior.

Materials From Everywhere

On the front of the altar under a large cross is a picture of the Last Supper and along the sides of the church are the Stations of the Cross. The colorful pictures were imported from Italy and placed on plaques made in Michigan.

The pews were made by Edgar Gabler, the cabinet maker and wood craftsman who operates Silver Lake. The six beautiful stained glass windows were built and supplied by the Art Glass Company of Cresap Park, a concern with 30 years of experience.

Cpl. Browning Explains Value Of First Aid

Cpl. John Browning, LaVale Barracks, Maryland State Police, was guest speaker at a meeting of the First Aid Association of Allegany County Chapter, American Red Cross, held in the chapter office.

Cpl. Browning spoke on the "Value of First Aid in Conjunction with the State Police." He related actual experiences in some accidents and types of things that the State Police are called upon to do. He said the State Police try to use the simplest possible remedy for aiding injured and getting them to a hospital as quickly as possible. Cpl. Browning stressed the importance of individuals having first aid instruction so that they will know what to do, as well as what not to do when faced with an emergency. He told the group that the state is so well covered that within seconds a State Police officer can be at the scene of an accident.

Mrs. Helene Schilling presided at a short business session.

The association discussed the need for instructors for the increased number of first aid classes and plans for a first aid instructors' course to be held in the near future.

Any area resident interested in becoming certified as a first aid instructor should contact the local Red Cross chapter office at the Post Office Building.

Attending the meeting were Vincent Delagrange, Leo Emerick, Joseph Clark, Dr. Harold Cordts, Noah Carder, Virgil Eackles, Chester Moody, Mrs. Edith Lichty and Mrs. Sara Lindsay.

The next meeting of the group will be in February.

Cousin Of Gov. Ritchie Makes Yearbook Valuable

The fame of a first cousin of the late Governor Albert Cabell Ritchie of Maryland has made the 1901 issue of the Bomb, student yearbook of Virginia Military Institute at Lexington, a collector's item.

Governor Ritchie's cousin was James Branch Cabell, a Virginia novelist who died in 1958. He was recognized as one of the major writers produced by the South since the Civil War. He attended the College of William and Mary but his younger brother, John L. Cabell, entered VMI and was assistant business manager of the 1901 Bomb.

The business manager, Charles S. Roller Jr., now a major general and superintendent of Augusta Military Academy at Fort Defiance, Va., asked the author to contribute and Mr. Cabell supplied a 3,000-word short story and a long poem without charge. As far as the staff of the VMI library can determine, Mr. Cabell's two contributions to the yearbook have not been printed elsewhere.

"A Private Affair," the short story, concerns the efforts of a young police reporter to preserve the pride of a woman he once loved by suppressing a news story after she had been forced to testify in court against her husband, who was arrested for beating her. At the time Mr. Cabell was a 22-year-old reporter for a Richmond newspaper.

The poem concerns the emergence of the United States as a world power.

Both Governor Ritchie and James Branch Cabell were great-grandsons of William H. Cabell, who was Governor of Virginia from 1805 until 1808. Cabell County, now in West Virginia, was named for Govenor Cabell.
